German War Declaration Spurs Interest In Yule Benefit Lecture of Ace Reporter Tonight

Germany's declaration of war against the United States—almost simultaneously with a similar declaration against this country by the Italian government—turned the spotlight on the lecture to be given here today by Richard C. Hottelet, Berlin correspondent for the United Press four years, at the Give-a-Christmas benefit program at Johnny Appleseed auditorium at 8 p. m.

Hottelet, whose informative reports from the reich capital, resulted in four months' imprisonment in Berlin jails on suspicion of espionage, will bring an inside story of Nazi Germany and the tactics employed by Hitler to dominate the world.

His story will be brought right up to the minute by news bulletins hot off the United Press wires which will be kept open by The Mansfield News-Journal, co-sponsor of the benefit program, so that Hottelet may discuss immediate developments in the war situation.

Arrangements for the bulletins were made by The News-Journal to make up in part for the absence of Robert G. Nixon, International News Service correspondent, scheduled to share the platform with Hottelet, but detained in Washington by the heavy press of news.

Hottelet is well qualified to speak not only on the strength of Germany's war machine but on the strides made in behalf of American defense. He covered the September war maneuvers for the United Press and is able to speak with authority on the subject.

The audience will be given opportunity to ask questions after this portion of the program which will be introduced by Author Louis Bromfield, whose former home in France was the meeting place for many foreign correspondents.

Today's declaration of war by the Axis, five days after Japan's surprise attack on an American possession, has created such a demand for tickets for tonight's performance that the sponsors anticipate a complete sell-out.

Tickets in charge of the Junior Association of Commerce, also a co-sponsor of the event may be procured for 55 cents at the school box office as long as they Stimson Reveals Attack Near Coast Of Philippines; Says Invaders Held In Small Area, Plane Losses Being Made Up.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The sinking of the 29,000-ton Japanese battleship Haruna by army bombers off the northern coast of Luzon in the Philippines was announced today by Secretary of War Stimson.

At his press conference, Stimson said the navy department had confirmed the sinking, previously reported by the army as a battleship of the Haruna class.

Determined resistance by American forces, Stimson reported, have confined Japanese landings on Luzon to the vicinity of Aparri at the extreme northern tip of the island.

(From Manila, however, came reports that Japanese parachutists had seized an airport six miles from Iligan in eastern Luzon. Aparri is on the northern coast.)

The war secretary said there were continued attacks by Japanese aircraft in the vicinity of Manila yesterday, particularly on the air fields at Cavite and Nichols field.

Stimson said that losses of planes in the attack on Hawaii Sunday, although heavy, already were being replaced.

These losses can be made good, and they are being made good now, the secretary said. He reported that a flight of four motored army bombers arrived in Hawaii during the Japanese attack.

The first of the planes was shot down, but the crews of the remaining ships, with a few moments warning, brought their ships in at various air fields in the islands, and only two of the planes suffered any damage.

This damage, Stimson said, was very light and would be repaired quickly.

"The American people have been put through a very heavy test in the last four days," Stimson said. "When we survey the situation in cold blood and in perspective, we must realize that initial reverses are almost inevitably to be expected in a contest between a democracy

Defense Industries Bolster Air Raid Precautions In California.

Army Will Co-operate With Elimination of All Practice, 'Alerts.'

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES—Southern California's defense industries, including aircraft plants building $1,000,000,000 worth of warplanes, sought today to bolster defense precautions to prevent costly shutdowns during air raid alarms.

Four aircraft plants were closed last night, their production of vital planes and parts halted, because of a three-hour air raid alarm during which the army said an enemy plane was overhead.

Consolidated Aircraft, building $750,000,000 worth of heavy bombers, Ryan Aeronautical and Solar Aircraft, building training planes, and Rohr Aircraft, manufacturer of equipment, were told by the army to order their 17,000 night shift workers home because their plants could not be completely blacked out.

Shipyards, where most of the activity is out of doors, also were hampered by the blackouts and production was delayed.

The army said it would co-operate to prevent delays when possible and ordered elimination of all practice blackouts. The alert signal also will be dispensed with and henceforth warnings will be flashed only when aircraft is approaching and immediate full blackouts are necessitated.

The alarm last night was spread throughout southern California from Bakersfield to the border town of Tijuana, Mexico, and the southern tip of Nevada where huge Boulder dam is located, when the army heard an unidentified plane "over and south of Los Angeles."

Planes of the interceptor command were sent up, anti-aircraft units were ordered to blast the Senator Sets Meetings To Aid Small Business.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Chairman Murray (D-Mont) of the senate committee to study the problems of small business has announced that the group will open a series of hearings Monday Dec. 15.

Principal witnesses that day will be Stacy May, director of research for OPM, and A. Ford Hinrichs, acting commissioner of the bureau of labor statistics.

The following day the committee will question a management-labor panel.

Japanese nationals who live outside Nippon and their progeny are clannish, like to stick together, form close-knit colonies of their own wherever they settle. The presence of such tight entities of nationalism arouses speculation in wartime whether their normal social and ethnic activities might extend to affect the political and military interests of the host nation. This chart based on 1930 U. S. census figures and official 1938 Japanese figures, shows where one third of a million sons of Nippon live in the New World. The FBI has already started a round-up of all Japanese, German and Italian subjects in the United States, whose presence might be dangerous.

1,000 Troops, 450 Trucks Roll On After Night's Stand Here

By ALVIN L. KRIEG

More than 450 army trucks, anti-aircraft guns on wheels, and other motorized vehicles of varying sizes and description rumbled out of Mansfield in the early hours this morning after the heaviest over-night concentration of troops in the city in years.

The convoy may have been the largest ever to step off in Mansfield, according to Capt. Glenn L. Eierly of Mansfield Company F, Ohio State Guard. More than 1,000 of the 1,700 troops in the convoy were billeted in the city for the night; the balance stayed at armories in Ashland and Bucyrus.

Mansfielders not only took the troops in for the night—they took the soldiers into their hearts. A number of persons telephoned the Mansfield Armory offering the use of their homes, if desired. Many motorists were held up at traffic intersections by the long line of trucks, but as a man they were good-natured about delays.

Some women brewed large pots of coffee, and a few had the opportunity to offer steaming cups to soldiers. Some business men sent out cigarets to the boys when the various motor vehicles came to a halt. But the city at large had to content itself with watching the trucks roll by, and residents cheerily waved the boys on.

The convoy was made up entirely of units of Coast Artillery. The troops spent the previous night at Valparaiso, Ind., and this morning, starting about 6 a. m., rolled on eastward on U. S. Route 30. Ultimate destination of the convoy was not disclosed. The convoy followed the usual practice of moving in groups of 30 units, at 15-minute intervals.

The troops, in command of Colonel Hocker, bedded down for the night on floors of the Mansfield Armory, and in three of the Chief Makes Known 'Secret' Program for City's Defense

Plans for precautionary measures for war-time protection of Mansfields water supply, police communication system and other vital municipal services upon which Mayor William J. Locke has refused to comment, holding they were "secret, were announced today by Police Chief M. K. Bates who had drawn up the program.

Bates said that he had outlined the program at a meeting Monday night at the municipal building. The program was primarily the same as that mapped out for all other Ohio cities and which those cities outlined Tuesday and yesterday.

Mayor Locke has refused to make any comment on the meeting. Yesterday, when a News-Journal reporter, William F. Murray, attempted to question him on the meeting, Locke became angry. The interview ended with the mayor pushed the reprter out of his office, knocking off his glasses and breaking them with a blow. The mayor said afterwards that Murray had struck him first and called upon his secretary, Miss Betty Mae Thompson, to support the statement. Miss Thompson, however, said she did not see the reporter strike the mayor.

Locke has steadily refused to reveal happenings at the meeting which was held with office curtains drawn and a patrolman standing guard over the office door.

DEBATE NEW PROGRAM

Washington Studies Plan To Register All Able-Bodied Men and Women.

While scores of aroused young Richland countians continued to besiege the navy recruiting station in Mansfield and the county's draft boards today, it was announced in Washington that plans are being studied to broaden selective service to register all the nation's able-bodied men and women for military and civilian defense.

Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, said it might be advisable eventually to register all men from 18 to 64 inclusive for possibly army or home defense service.

Sixty more youths applied at the navy recruiting station yesterday for enlistment in the navy to bring the total to nearly 150 for the past three days.

County draft board clerks estimated that they have had nearly 50 requests since Monday from registrants who can't wait to get a chance at the Japanese.

Local boards were authorized in an order this morning from state draft headquarters to release men who have had their physical examinations to enlist in the army or navy before they are called for induction.

Board clerks said a number of registrants already have been referred to the navy recruiting station at the Mansfield post office and the regular army recruiting station at Fort Hayes, Columbus.

Plans were discussed in Washington for reclassifying thousands of men who were deferred because of dependents or their jobs

Clears Way for 'Parolees' to Get In Armed Forces

Richland county common pleas court officials today cleared the way for young men on probation to join the nation's armed forces with clean records.

Judge C. H. Huston said he would void the probations of youths with good records who will be accepted by the army, navy, air corps, or marine corps. The court must first have the assurance, however, that the probationers will be accepted if they are released.

Probation Officer David Lantz said today that he has just released two youths to join the army and a third to go into the navy. There are six more on his lists who have no dependents and would be eligible for service if they pass their physical examinations, he said. He has 115 on probation, but most of them have dependents or are past the army age limit.

Released for army service were Paul Lee and James Urie. Lantz was preparing a release today for Robert Keefer who will join the navy.

"Military duty is good probation for the boys, and the government needs them now," the probation officer said.

Prosecutor Harold Lutz pointed out that a probation order is merely a suspended sentence for a first offender and when it is lifted the probationer has a clean court record. The majority of the probationers were cited for assault and battery, non-support, and breaking and entering.

Hull Keeps German Envoy Waiting With War Note for Nearly Two Hours; Congress Expected to Act At Once In Reprisal.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—The United States declared war against Germany and Italy today, a few hours after those Axis powers had proclaimed a state of war against this country. A special message from President Roosevelt to congress brought prompt action in both senate and house of a war resolution.

(Compiled from Associated Press, United Press and International News Service dispatches.)

WASHINGTON—Germany and Italy today formally notified this government that a "state of war exists" with the United States and President Roosevelt immediately moved to ask congress for a retaliatory declaration at noon.

The White House announced the president's decision, and Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early said congressional leaders had been notified to introduce resolutions for formal declarations of war against Germany and Italy, thus placing this nation in open hostilities with them.

The German notification was delivered to the state department by Hans Thomsen, charge d'affaires of the German embassy, the Italian action, through a note delivered by the Italian foreign minister, Count Ciano, to George Wadsworth, the American charge d'affaires in Rome, who relayed it to the state department at 10 a. m. EST.

Thomsen called at the state department with the German note at 8:15 a. m. but Secretary of State Hull added tenseness to the drama by bluntly refusing to receive him. After sitting stolidly in a diplomatic anteroom for one hour and forty-five minutes, Thomsen was finally received by Ray Atherton, head of the department's European division, and the German notification was formally accepted.

Then a half hour later the state department issued the following statement concerning the Italian action:

"The Italian foreign minister, Count Ciano, sent for American Charge D'Affaires George Wadsworth at Rome at 2:30 this afternoon (Rome time). When Mr. Wadsworth arrived at his office, Count Ciano informed him that as of today Italy considers itself at war with the United States."

In announcing the president's intention of sending a request to congress for a formal declaration of war against the other two Axis nations, White House Secretary Stephen T. Early said:

"The long expected is now a reality. We have received

Germany, Italy Pledge They Won't Make Separate Peace

TOKYO—(Official Radio Received By AP)—Germany and Italy have pledged their solemn word to Japan that neither will make a separate peace until the Axis' common war with the United States and Great Britain has been successfully concluded, the board of information announced today.

The three-power agreement, the announcement said, provided:

"ARTICLE ONE: Japan, Germany and Italy shall prosecute the war forced on them by the United States of America and the British empire with all the forceful means at their command until it ends in their victory.

"ARTICLE TWO: Japan, Germany and Italy pledge that without complete understanding between themselves they will not conclude an armistice or peace with the United States of America or the British empire.

"ARTICLE THREE: Japan, Italy and Germany, after the victorious end of the war, will cooperate most closely together on the basis of the tri-partite pact concluded on Sept. 27, 1940, in order to attain a righteous new order.

"ARTICLE FOUR: The present agreement comes into force immediately as it is signed and will remain in force for the whole duration of the tri-partite pact concluded on Sept. 27, 1940. The three partners will come to an agreement at a timely moment, before the expiration of the above date, in order to establish formalities of their co-operation as foreseen by Article Three of the present agreement."

Nazis, Italy Declare War On United States

Roosevelt to Ask Retaliation Today at Noon; Hull Keeps Germany Envoy Waiting Nearly Two Hours.

the official notifications of war. Secretary of State Hull notified the president that the state department was advised this morning by the German charge d'affaires, and the American embassy advised that it had received similar notification in Rome.

"The senate leader (Sen. Barkley of Kentucky) and the speaker (Rayburn) both have advised the president that resolutions will be promptly introduced and passed.

"Germany has declared war, and Italy has goose stepped behind, apparently in compliance with orders.

"The president will send a message to congress at noon."

In congress every preparation was under way for the formal declaration. Speaker of the House Rayburn said it could be safely stated that Mr. Roosevelt would ask for the declaration when the two branches met at noon and Chairman Connally of the senate foreign relations committee announced he would probably introduce a war resolution at that time.

Adolf Hitler made Germany's official declaration of war against the United States after nearly one hour of speechmaking before his reichstag sounding board in which he again pictured Germany as invincible and at the same time victim of war plotters in the United States, Britain and Russia.

The reichsfuehrer told his cheering audience in the Kroll opera house that Germany and Italy were honoring the three-power pact with Japan on the grounds, as the Axis puts it, that the United States had attacked Japan.

"I have today told the German ambassador to the United States to ask for his passport.

"Germany has never been as united as today and will have the strength to take all measures necessary.

"National Socialist Germany has far more foresight and I have therefore given the American charge d'affaires his passport today."

"Italy and Germany are forced, in agreement with the stipulation in the tripartite pact, to associate themselves with Japan," Hitler said. The declaration of war concluded the speech.

Hitler finished his address at about 9:37 a. m. EST (3:37 p. m. Berlin time).

Hitler, introduced by his No. 1 political heir, Marshal Goering, began addressing the reichstag about 8:08 a. m.

Hitler called the present war a historic struggle which he said would determine history for hundreds of years to come.

"This has become the greatest year of decision by the German people and your greatest decision stands before us," the reichs-fuehrer said.

Hitler arrived at the reichstag meeting, in historic Kroll opera house, at 8:03 a. m. E. S. T. (1:03 p. m. Berlin time). As president of the reichstag, Goering opened the session. Present was the Japanese ambassador.

"In this serious time," Hitler told the assembly, "I speak to you members of the reichstag as representatives of the German nation.

"Furthermore the entire German people shall take cognizance of these reports as well as of the decisions which our adversaries have forced upon us.

The earlier passages of Hitler's speech followed a familiar pattern.

"If providence wanted it that war should not be avoided, so I must thank providence for putting me at the head of the German nation in this war which will decide the fate not only of Germany but of Europe and the entire world throughout the next 500 or 1,000 years . . .

"It is my decision to make the European front unconquerable for the enemy."

Among other things, Hitler said that Germany's sea communications "now are open from Spain to Petsamo" —Finnish port in the far north—and "Europe is defended by fortifications which in no way are less than those of the Siegfried line."

He spoke of what he termed British attempts in the past to encircle Germany and, turning to the war with Russia, said that "only a blind man" could have failed to see Russia's pre-war preparations to fight Germany.

Hitler compared Germany's present fight to that of ancient Greece defending Europe against Persia. Later, he said, the Romans and the Germans took up this defense.

He said that in all her wars Europe had had to fight against "strange elements from abroad."

Premier Mussolini announced Italy's entrance into the war against United States at about the same time as Hitler made his address.

He spoke to a large crowd from the balcony of Palazzo Venezia.

The Fascist leader pledged his people victory and told them that President Roosevelt, "through a series of infinite provocations, betraying with a supreme fraud the population of his country, wanted the war and had prepared for it day by day with diabolical obstinacy."

Earlier, Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano had summoned the United States Charge D'Affaires to the Chigo palace and informed him that King-Emperor Vittorio Emanuele had declared Italy at war with the United States as from today.

Crowds surged through Rome vociferously demonstrating Axis solidarity with Japan.

The German-Italian war declarations fulfilled commitments under the three-power pact to go to Japan's aid if she were deemed to have been attacked by the United States.

Il duce assured his people the pact would "become an instrument of just peace between the peoples."

"Italians!" he concluded, "once more arise and be worthy of this historical hour!

"We shall win!"

Churchill Predicts Allies Will Win Over Whole Axis

(By United Press)

LONDON—Prime Minister Winston Churchill, addressing the house of commons today as Germany and Italy declared war on the United States, said the British Empire, America, Russia and China were fighting for their lives "and will go forward to victory—not over Japan alone but over the Axis and all its works."

"Our foes are bound by their ambitions and their crimes, implacably, to the destruction of the English-speaking world and all it stands for," he said.

"It may well be that we shall have to suffer very considerable punishment, but we shall defend ourselves everywhere with the utmost vigor and close co-operation with the United States and The Netherlands navy. . . .

"I know I speak for the United States as well as for the British empire when I say we would all rather perish than be conquered. . . . It would indeed bring shame on our generation if we did not teach the enemy a lesson which will not be forgotten in the records of a thousand years."

In a wide-sweeping review of the war Churchill said Adolf Hitler in attacking Russia had made one of the outstanding blunders of history, that the German and Italian forces in eastern Libya faced complete destruction and that in the battle of the Atlantic shipping losses had decreased.

"We can already see after six months of fighting in Russia that Hitler has made one of the outstanding blunders in history and the results so far realized constitute cardinal importance in the final decision of the war," he said.

to make them available for military service. Women and older men could replace many of them in jobs, it was suggested.

Brig. Gen. Hershey said there were about seven million men between the ages of 21 and 35 who were deferred because of dependency. It probably will be necessary to re-classify many of them according to how well their dependants can get along without them, and according to what aid the government might be willing to extend to them while their men are in the army, he added.

"I believe there should be flexible authority from congress to be used piecemeal, presenting the people with a broad liability for registration and a narrower liability for service. Brig. Gen. Hershey said, "I don't visualize five or six million men marching off to war, but we must be ready through a measured approach to the problem.'

From the men already registered, General Hershey estimated, the armed services have about 1,000,000 immediately available by lowering the standards for acceptance without increasing the age limit.

If all men now registered, including those 35 years old, were inducted under lowered standards there probably would be a total of 3,000,000 he said.

About half of the nation's 1,600,000-man army now are selectees. The navy has not yet taken any of them but, Hershey ssaid, they probably would begin soon.

"Let's use what we've got first," General Hershey said. "I believe we should use the group 21 to 28 now to the limit of efficiency."

Legislation is not necessary to induct men under lowered standards but it would be to change the age limits for registration and service, outside the 21 to 35-year limits.

Registrants who have been examined for induction will not be released after their induction orders have been mailed by the draft boards, clerks of county boards said. That restriction protects the boards' supply of men for regular induction.

Richland county boards have no calls for men on file and they anticipate none until January. The three boards have more than 100 men already examined and ready for induction, but the calls are expected to be heavy in January and the boards want to retain a sufficient supply.

Bryan Styert, clerk of Board 2, said one Mansfielder who was discharged from the army 11 years ago came back and asked to be inducted although he is married and has one child.

"He said he had talked it over with his wife and they decided the army needed him worse than he was needed at home," Styert said.

Some of the officers rested overnight in the common pleas court room at the courthouse. Five hundred of the troops proceeded to Ashland, and 200 remained in Bucyrus, and were billeted at the Armories in those cities.

First knowledge that the city was to play host to the large convoy came by telephone early yesterday when the group's billeting officer telephoned police from Fort Wayne, Ind. The call was referred to Captain Bierly, who immediately set the wheels in motion for handling the group. He was assisted by Lt. Hollis Moorhead and Lt. R. B. Schoenman of the Ohio State Guard.

J. B. Moke, building superintendent of city schools, arranged for turning over the gymnasiums of the three schools to the troops. Basketball games and other functions planned for the auditoriums were cancelled.

"The schools, the police, and the state highway patrol, and the city at large did a splendid job," Captain Bierly said. "Everything went very smoothly, and I'm sure that every member of the convoy has a high regard for Mansfiled."

State highway patrolmen from the Mansfield station met the convoy at Crestline, where it was escorted by patrolmen from the Van Wert station. Again this morning patrolmen escorted the caravan out of the city. During the procession through the city, Mansfield police assisted in expediting flow of traffic.

"We gained considerable experience from handling the flow of this large convoy," Commissioner Frend Boals of the police traffic bureau, reported. "Things went very smoothly, without any accidents or hitches, but the experience has trained us to do an even better job in the future."

The convoy was completely equipped with mobile kitchens, and the evening meal was served when the procession came to a halt. Mansfield became a reunion place for several families, one from Erie, P., who had relatives among the troops and who drove here for an evening visit.

Hottelet spoke to a capacity house in Lorain last night at a similar benefit program and his lecture was very well received.

In addition to his talk there will be music by the Mansfield Senior high school band and drum corps, headed by the drum majorettes, and selections by Mrs. W. J. Hazeltine's Treble choir. The choir will include both patriotic airs and Christmas carols in its program.

All proceeds from the performance will go to buy food for Christmas baskets for Mansfield's needy. At least 400 baskets are required this year and the sponsors hope to raise enough funds from the program tonight to fill between 100 and 150 of them. The Mansfield Community Fund is cooperating in the Give-a-Christmas program by acting as a clearing house for organizations and individuals desiring to provide Christmas dinners.

Germany and Italy Declare War

THE AXIS partners of Japan—Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy—have joined in declarations of war against the United States.

What has long been obvious is now clearly and unmistakably stated—and a real, obvious peril exists.

It is not enough to SAY "We will win"—it is necessary to quickly develop the military supremacy that will assure success.

Preparing for a Long, Hard War

ANOTHER of the things to which the attitude of Americans must become adjusted is that this is more likely to be a long war than a short one.

President Roosevelt put it thus: "It will not only be a long war, it will be a hard war. That is the basis on which we now lay all our plans."

This is not only a war against Japan—it is also a war against the mighty military machine of Hitler and whatever strength he can enlist or compel from other Axis dominated nations.

America's greatest immediate task—while there is yet time—is to concentrate on attaining capacity production of essential war materials of all kinds.

A start has been made—but it is only a start as compared with what MUST be done from now on—and what CAN be done by this unified nation which is well prepared to go even further in development of what is already the greatest industrial organization in the world.

This accomplishment will require closer co-operation and better co-ordination than has been considered necessary in past months and recent years. It will require at least temporary abandonment of partisan bias and use of the most capable men in America for work in their special fields of knowledge, regardless of political views or personal friendships.

This is a time in which animosities, even enmities, sink into insignificance alongside the great task of saving this nation from destruction and doing everything possible to minimize the ravages of war.

Now, also, it becomes highly important to assure capacity production of military and civilian supplies by small factories, as well as large, and to provide employment for all workers who can be spared from actual military service.

There will be need not only for war supplies but also for the production and distribution of vast quantities of civilian goods, for the nation's millions must continue to be fed, wages must be earned and taxes paid, in order that the war may be pursued to successful termination—no matter how long it takes.

President Roosevelt made it clear in his Tuesday night talk that there is no present need to curtail the normal articles of food and that shortages for civilian use are thus far confined to metals needed for defense production.

A proper course at this time appears to be willing co-operation with all requests or instructions from the national government, or local agencies thereof, and to continue the customary mode of life in the matter of purchases for personal and family use, as well as for gifts, as curtailment of purchases would cause serious economic dislocations with necessarily harmful effects.

It is not correct to use the word "sacrifice," our president says. "The United States does not consider it a sacrifice to do all it can to give one's best to our nation, when the nation is fighting for its existence and its future life. . . . Rather it is a privilege."

Regrettable Episode

SUCH an incident as that which occurred in the mayor's office at municipal building yesterday morning, when Mayor William J. Locke—in a fit of anger—struck a News-Journal reporter, is regrettable.

It is particularly regrettable, in that it publicly reveals Mayor Locke as a person lacking in self control, which is recognized as a primary essential of anyone occupying a position of authority.

As has been previously stated, the purpose of The News-Journal in assigning a reporter to cover the municipal building, and to see Mayor Locke, is not to satisfy curiosity but to serve its readers with news of public business to which they are entitled. Reporters are not chosen on the basis of brawn, nor is it deemed necessary that they have a bodyguard when they call at the office of a public official.

The inability of Mayor Locke to "get along" with reporters—and this is not confined to any one reporter—can be more fairly credited to traits of the mayor than to any fault of the reporter, as the same antagonistic attitude has been evidenced toward all reporters assigned to cover this beat.

Such an episode is unique as its marks the first time in thirty-six years recollection of mayors of Mansfield in which a chief executive of the city has shown a lack of understanding of the obligation of a newspaper to its community to publish the news, including that which relates to the conduct of public business.

Kindest interpretation of the words and acts of Mayor Locke is that he entered office as a comparative newcomer to Mansfield, without having had any experience in preparation for such large responsibilities, handicapped by stubbornness, quick temper, inclination to pout in a childish way, and disposed to take a dictatorial attitude toward those with whom he is associated, as well as toward reporters.

This is regrettable—as regrettable, in a small way, as the attitude of Hitler and Goebbels in Nazi Germany is in a large way, in witholding from newspapers all information they desire kept from the public. America—of which Mansfield is proud to be a part—still retains that "freedom of the press" which the nation's greatest men have held to be essential to preservation of liberties of the people, and proper restraint of officials and agencies charged with the operation of government.

Recently re-elected to a second term, which is to start the first of the year, it may be hoped that Mayor Locke will find time for such introspection as will make him cognizant of some of his own weaknesses, his inability to "get along" with office associates, and to bring him better understanding of the duties of his position. When this is done he will find—possibly to his amazement—that he will have no further trouble with reporters and that his service to the people of this community will be much enhanced.

Propose Confab on 'World Order'

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

JUST WHO originated the idea isn't very clear, but the suggestion's floating about Washington that it would be a bright notion to have a conference of nations now, or as soon as possible, without waiting for the war's end, to dope out, in advance, a future peacetime "world order."

There's to be no thought of post-war vengeance at this proposed conference, according to the scheme's proponents.

On the contrary, their plan is to frame so attractive a program, in the whole world's interest, that no country in its right mind will be able to resist getting in on it. The present Axis powers are to be invited in, too, on the same terms as others.

It isn't argued that the compact will appeal to Herr Hitler, because it's to be absolutely just to all subscribers to it, and justice is exactly what he doesn't want. The theory is, though, that the bargain will look so good to Germans generally that they'll chuck Adolf overboard and agree to it.

The Italians, it's reckoned, will be easier to persuade. Plenty of information indicates that they're heartily sick of the war already.

Nationalities joining in the deal won't be asked to change their various internal forms of government, but only to adhere on an international basis. Consequently Russia shouldn't have any objection to lining up, even if it sticks to its Soviet system.

How delegates to the conference will be chosen isn't fully explained. The proposition still is too hazy for that so far.

It will be simple enough, however, for the United States, Great Britain, China, Russia, the Latin American republics and the not-yet-overrun parts of Europe, like Switzerland and Sweden, to make selections, somehow or other. Over-run folk, such as the Dutch and Belgians, probably will be negotiated with through their "government in exile," and the de Gaulle outfit likely will speak for the French.

Nor do the conference's promoters intend to exclude the Germans and Italians.

Emissaries from Fuehrer Hitler and Duce Mussolini naturally won't be acceptable, for the very essence of the scheme is the creation of a world order in which such regimes as theirs will be impossible. Germany and Italy, though, both have respectable exiles (Dr. Albert Einstein's a specimen) who can be wished into the consultation.

Boosters for the confab do assume, it seems to me, something of an improbability—that representatives of the warring and already conquered democracies can get together, at the present juncture, and agree on their post-war new order without a thought of vengeance upon the countries that still are fighting them or are keeping them in subjection.

It'll be a good deal of a dose to ask a Free Frenchman or a Netherlander not to insist on getting even with the Axis partners. It also can't but strain the international charity of the Chinese to urge them to be friends henceforward with the Japs, provided they'll stop killing them as they've been doing going on five years.

Listen World!

Look for the Beam

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THERE'S a dreary monotony about my letters these days, like a moan, going on and on, and me sitting by, helpless to heal the pain.

Mary's, for instance. (Yes, it's a true letter.) Mary is 43 . . . bent from washing and mopping . . . wrinkled and going gray. No beauty creams in Mary's career, but love that the Mint couldn't hold.

Mary lives 'round the corner from your house—down where the houses are smaller and shabbier, with the smell of corn beef 'n' cabbage forever warming the sill, and the sound of babies laughing. By all the count, Mary Higgins should be the happy woman, come this Christmas. For Jim has a steady job in the yards . . . and Eddie will be able to finish Hi . . . 'n' the baby has had her tonsils out . . . 'n' Nora's stopped running with that tough juke box gang.

Which, as I said, should be making a happy day for Mrs. Jimmy Higgins. But 'tisn't. All these luxuries for her as never knew shoe leather 'till she was goin' on sixteen, yet her heart's heavy as lead. An' for why?

"It's the faces," says Mary. "The faces as gets me down. The empty look to them, even though they're eating reg'lar. The lost look . . . as if they was seekin' 'n' seekin' but couldn't find."

Find what? Well, Mary's not one for words. But with Christmas time, the old feelings come back. The thoughts of the days when she'd be standing in the church and singing her thanks . . . and seein' the faces all around her shining like the dawnin' with the joy of it all.

"But the faces aren't shinin' now. Something's gone from them . . . out of their eyes 'n' their hearts. Is it, maybe, like some of these blabbin' smarties say . . . that the Bible's just a nice soundin' fairy tale . . . and there's no good Father, not really, to be lookin' for and leanin' on in the bitter bad days like these? And is that why there's the hungry look in the faces you see, though they've money in the purse and food in the pantry? For if that's the truth, then God help us all this Christmas."

God help us all indeed, Mary . . . but thanks be to that same God, it isn't the truth! Yes, I know it's a sad Christmas. And the pity is we've brought it on ourselves with our foolishness and hate. But we're not as lost or forgotten as you think, my dear.

You've heard of the "radio beam" haven't you, Mary . . . that great beam of light which goes flashing up into the night from every radio field . . . and up and up into the night, to guide the tired lads home. 'Tis a lovely thought—isn't it?—the picture of those weary men winging home "on the beam." And, better still, it's a true thought. For no matter how black the night or how stupid we are with the blundering, there's a beam waiting for us all, to lead us out of the dark.

It isn't made of electricity, that other beam. It's made of the love and courage, the tenderness and truth that have burned in men's hearts since the world began . . . with the light in God's heart answering. Not just the good men—mind you—but the decency in all men, good or bad, heathen or Christian. That's the beam that's shining over all the world these nights, Mary—the beam that will save us yet.

You're seeing the hunger and despair in the faces around you because you've learned to expect them . . . to look for them. And, it's true, they're there. But there's something greater there . . . warming the loneliness . . . shining behind the hunger. The beam's there, Mary! No matter how black the night . . . or how hopeless the pass . . . the beam is there as it always has been.

SO DON'T LOSE YOUR COURAGE, GIRL, OR LET YOUR HOPE GO LIMP IN THE DARKNESS AHEAD! LIFT YOUR HEAD . . . STEADY YOUR HEART . . . LOOK FOR THE BEAM INSTEAD!

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Unions, as Well as Contractors, Profit Heavily on Defense Work

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Recently the Washington Merry-Go-Round revealed that the house naval affairs committee had unearthed sensational evidence about huge profits being made by shipbuilders, aircraft manufacturers and other defense firms. Further details on this will be unfolded when the committee makes public its full report shortly.

Contract profiteering, however, won't be the only bombshell in this report.

The committee also will disclose some startling facts about labor union finances. The committee sent out questionnaires to 162 AFL and CIO international unions. So far 101, or about two-thirds have replied. A digest of their reports reveals the interesting fact that these unions had more than $73,000,000 salted away in their treasuries as of April 1, 1941.

Acquired through fees, per capita taxes and special assessments, the $73,000,000 represented an increase of about 25 per cent over assets on Sept. 1, 1939. The international unions profited to the extent of nearly $20,000,000 from the defense program.

In other words, these unions, like the contractors, did right smart for themselves out of the national emergency.

One of the biggest union beneficiaries of the defense program, the committee report will show, is the United Mine Workers, bossed by John L. Lewis.

The questionnaire received back from him disclosed that the UMW had a fat treasury balance in April of $4,014,075.80. Since then, there has been at least one special assessment, reported to have yielded another $1,000,000.

Note—Representative Carl Vinson of Georgia, committee chairman, is quitely planning to follow up his report with a bill to tax international unions the same as corporations. The Internal Revenue law now specifically exempts labor organizations. Under Vinson's bill international unions would be taxed but local unions would continue to be exempted.

Secret Bases In S. A.

ONE CLUE as to how carefully the Japanese and Nazis prepared for the attack on the U. S. was unearthed by the congressional committee which investigated aviation conditions in South America.

They discovered that six Messerschmidt planes recently were flown into Colombia by Japanese pilots. The planes and pilots later disappeared, but it is well known that Colombia is dotted with German "fincas" or plantations, many of them not too far distant from the Panama Canal. These plantations are isolated establishments, where no outsider can ascertain exactly what goes on.

The congressional committee also learned that the Japanese had secretly stored 8,000 tons of dynamite at Medellin, and that other high explosives were stored by Japanese fifth columnists.

Another revealing clue was the report that Japanese and Nazi agents had established twelve secret airbases in the Colombian jungles in connection with German plantations.

It was significant that Japanese struck first not at the Philippines, which is armed to the teeth with heavy bombers, but at Hawaii. Hawaii had sent its best war planes on to the Philippines . . . If the navy had read the newspapers it might have been better prepared last Sunday. Constantine Brown, foreign affairs expert of the Washington Star, predicted war with Japan ten days in advance and named Sunday, Dec. 7, as the starting date.

Lucky Hit.

THAT lucky hit by a British aerial torpedo on the propellors of the ill-fated Nazi battleship Bismarck, was a shot heard around the world in naval circles.

It has started reconsideration of designs that will result in far-reaching changes in naval construction.

Except for the direct hit on the Bismarck's driving gear, which slowed her down and enabled the British fleet to close in, the giant Nazi battlewagon might have escaped to rove the seas and prey on shipping. This fact has sunk home to naval builders and they have become extremely conscious of this Achilles Heel. Orders have gone out to devise protection for ships' propellors.

The answer to the engineering problem involved is not an easy one.

Bulges extending beyond a ship's propellors would offer some protection, but this would be offset by serious reduction in propulsive power and maneuverability. Some other solution has to be found.

One thing is certain: The Germans had none up to the time they built the Bismarck.

Leaded Order.

NEXT on the pan for grilling by the senate defense investigating committee will be OPM's Priority Division, long a little business peeve.

Specific target of the tough senate probers is the priority order banning the use of lead for making tin-foil. Reason given for this ukase was shortage of lead for defense purposes. Committee members are convinced there is more to it than this.

They scent the trail of the powerful Aluminum Corporation of America, long the object of deep suspicion and sizzling condemnation by the committee.

Hardest hit by the lead ban is the Reynolds Metal company, go-getting competitor of giant Alcoa. Several months ago, as a patriotic move when the aluminum shortage became acute, Reynolds, a big foil manufacturer, stopped using aluminum in their product. At considerable cost the company converted its plants to use lead instead.

The anti-lead priority order is a double-barreled blow to Reynolds. It not only puts the company completely out of the tin-foil business, with thousands of workers thrown out of jobs, but it also jeopardizes the firm's booming aluminum business that for the first time is giving Alcoa real competition.

Reynolds went into aluminum production by means of an RFC loan. As security RFC took a lien on all Reynolds plants.

Thus, while one government agency has a mortgage on Reynolds, another government agency is cutting the ground out from under Reynolds in regard to paying off its government mortgage.

The senate probers think some strange undercover doings will be brought to light that will crack certain high-placed defense heads.

Note—The senate probe will be a pleasant surprise to Guy Holcomb, scrappy young head of the justice department's Little Business Bureau, who has been deluged with complaints at the lead ban and has been trying to get relief for hard-hit little business men.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Did you know a recording engineer can pick up a phonograph record and read its grooves as easily as a blind man reads braille? He can.

In support of this. I offer you a little scene that took place between Judith Anderson and the engineer at the Victor recording studios in Manhattan last Thanksgiving day.

Miss Anderson's Thanksgiving was a busy one. With Maurice Evans, the Shakespearean star, and a cast of four supporting players, she spent the day recording an album of scenes from their current success "Macbeth."

After one of the readings Miss Anderson squinted at the huge wax disc that imprisoned her words . . . "Is that me?" she asked, pointing to a section of the grooves.

TOMMY DORSEY tells me the Dance Caravan put on by the RCA company was an interesting experience. It was to begin with a party aboard their special train at Grand Central, but the train got lost in the yards, and the guests were scattered over four miles of track, trying to find it.

Finally, the party was held and the train pulled out. But there was to be no relaxation. Outside of Buffalo Tommy broke his spectacles. Consequently, when Barry Wood pointed out Tommy to station platform fans, they took one look and said nix. Barry quickly obtained a pair of specs and thrust them on Dorsey's nose, and the fans came running.

In Cleveland he spent one afternoon conducting a high school band at a football game. There were two high school brass bands at the game, and Shep Fields conducted the other . . . It resulted in some furious blasting, with honors about even.

Then, in Detroit, where cut-rate dance tickets were available to school kids if they could get there by 9:30 p. m., two little girls waited so long to obtain the Dorsey autograph that it appeared they would miss the dance. It was already 9 o'clock, and the dance was 7 miles out of town.

When Tommy understood what was happening, he said, "We can't have anything like that going on, come on" . . . Whereupon he crowded them into the front seat of his car and drove them to the dance himself.

In sum, the caravan was a joy ride, but it left him exhausted and ready to take up his new chores in the films. He's off to the coast now to make "I'll Take Manila" for MGM.

Pullet Eggs

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE English Leghorn pullets we bought as chicks, last mid-June, are beginning to lay. They have been less trouble than any flock I ever raised. The reason, I guess, was because they were very good stock to start with, and we started them after the weather was warm and settled. Having no brooder house, we improvised one from a big fruit tree box. We put them at the edge of the back lawn, along the cornfield, near the outlet of the spring. It was not long before they could fend for themselves—drink from the flowing stream; eat grass in the little pasture; roam over the field of growing corn in search of bugs and worms; wallow in the cool shade at the edge of the corn field.

I kept growing mash in their feeders, but often they hurried away from this conventionalized ration to the pasture, the stream's edge, or the natural food of their own finding. They seemed to be enjoying themselves.

Now, smoothly and glossily white, with wide red floppy combs they emerge every morning at daylight, like sleepwalkers, to sing and mutter and gossip as they hunt the early worms. Presently from the mow, I hear a lusty cackle, then another, and another. They are shameless advertisers. Sometimes a hen far down in the cornfield gives a hysterical cry. Immediately all the rest take it up and start running flightily toward the barn with outspread wings.

Our small boys hunt the mows and mangers over for the small white eggs. We eat a big platterful for breakfast every morning. I find a kind of stimulating satisfaction in seeing those eggs disappear—and eggs taste better when big ones are selling for a nickel apiece in the market.

Eggs are among the best protective foods, ranking high for their vitamin and mineral content and as a food for growth. The yolks are high in iron and phosphorus—makers of blood and bone. The whites are an easily digested form of protein—maker and repairer of muscles. Eggs contain vitamins A, B, D and G—in quantities depending upon the diet of the hen.

Pullet eggs, though, are dainty in size; delightfully tender and their rounded little yolks stand up so well and make such pretty ovals in the skillet! They are the actual "first fruits" of the feathered flock — and nobody who has not raised a flock of hens of his own should ever eat them.

and an autocratic government.

"This is particularly true when the autocratic government has been preparing and fighting for several years and its men are veterans. We must be very careful not to underestimate the ability of the Japanese seamen.

"On the other hand, all students of history know that every war has three periods. They have been designated as the period of onset, the period of drag, when the war begins to weigh on the nations involved, and the finish.

"During the first period, it is inevitable that the free government, the government that depends on the consent of its people, carried on by persuasion instead of force, is at a distinct disadvantage.

"On the other hand, it is to be expected, and usually has been proved to be a fact, that in the later periods when it becomes a matter of endurance, the democracies win victories and win the war.

"It is the last shots, not the first shots, that count."

Stimson said of the attack on Hawaii that the war department itself as yet does not have a complete report, but said that this was no time for recriminations or accusations of blame.

Japs Claim 197 U. S. Planes Destroyed

Japan asserted officially today that its forces had destroyed 197 United States planes in two days' operations in the Philippines and had sunk an American destroyer, a submarine and a special service ship in operations off the Hawaiian islands.

A German broadcast quoted Tokyo as claiming the sinking of the 33,000-ton United States aircraft carrier Lexington off Hawaii.

Imperial headquarters at Tokyo asserted that Japanese troops, landing on America's outpost island of Guam, had taken about 350 prisoners, captured much material and seized key points in the harbor without loss.

The Berlin radio, heard in London by the United Press, broadcast a Tokyo dispatch that the Japanese had captured Agna, capital of Guam, the governor and military commandant, "Capt. George C. McMillan, and several officers—in all, 350 Americans."

A 3,000-ton American oil tanker was captured in the harbor, Tokyo asserted, and its captain and crew of 30 made prisoner.

It was asserted further that five of a formation of sever American planes had been shot down in air attacks on Wake island and that numerous "military objectives" had been destroyed.

A later communique asserted that in the Manila attacks a transport was heavily damaged and that an arsenal was exploded at nearby Cavite naval base.

Loss of five Japanese planes was admitted. Two of the planes, it was said, dived headlong into their objectives in suicide attacks.

It was said that two British gunboats were sunk by direct bomb hits in an attack on Hong Kong.

Japs Claim Capture Of Guam Capital

TOKYO — (Official radio received by AP)—A Japanese army communique declared Japanese landing forces occupied the capital of Guam today, capturing 350 Americans, including Capt. George C. McMillin, governor and other officers.

These, the communique said, included the vice governor and commandant of the naval station.

The Japanese claimed that the entire operation had been carried out without loss to the attacking force.

They said 25 Japanese found interned on the island were released and the landing force was continuing "mopping up operations."

A navy communique said a 3,000-ton United States tanker was captured in the Guam attack.

It declared that the Japanese, striking by sea from all sides of the island, gained their first foothold at dawn yesterday, when a naval landing party reached shore at Port Apra, on the west coast of the island 1,500 airline miles east of Manila. The port is little more than five miles from Agana, the capital.

Domei reported that a landing on Wake followed repeated Japanese aerial attacks. Barracks and warehouses were said to have been smashed and set ablaze. The news agency reported that seven United States planes were downed in a single day's dogfights in the skies over the island.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Bad War News Changes to Good

Grieved by the reported death of his son, Sergt. James H. Derthick, 22, of the army air corps, whose name appeared in the official list of soldiers killed in the Japanese raid on the island of Oahu, Paul Derthick of Ravenna, O., was overjoyed when he was informed by the war department that an error had been made—his son is alive, although wounded. Derthick is shown reading the telegram of good news.

Hint Cause of Hawaii 'Surprise'

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A theory that the clock-work regularity of the army's "dawn patrol" may have contributed unwittingly to the surprise of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor was advanced today by military men familiar with the Pacific outpost.

One officer recalled that while he was stationed in Hawaii, a squadron of army patrol planes would roar over his house at the same time every morning and return at the same time after sweeping a certain distance out to sea.

"You could set your watch by those flights," he recalled

That regularity, he explained, may have been capitalized on by the Japanese when they made their daring aerial swoop on the great naval base.

"It is possible," he said, "that the Japanese sent some of their naval intelligence officers into Hawaii where they got jobs on the sugar plantations from which they could watch and time the dawn patrols every day.

"That would enable them—or any other expert observer, for that matter—to estimate pretty accurately how far the patrols exended over the sea and with that information, they could determine how close to the islands their aircraft carriers could approach to launch their attack planes without danger of being observed by the army patrols."

HITLER TALLIES CAMPAIGN LOSS

Reports 162,000 Killed In Assault on Russia.

BERLIN —(ANS)— (Via official German wireless)—Adolf Hitler today announced German casualties in the Russian campaign as follows:

Dead: 162,314, wounded: 377,767, missing: 33,334.

(Editor's Note: Official Soviet announcements place German casualties in the neighborhood of 3,000,000.)

Russian war losses to Dec. 1, Hitler said, include 3,806,865 prisoners and 21,391 tanks, 32,541 guns and 17,322 planes captured or destroyed.

plane if it were spotted, and the entire area was blacked out.

Col. Harry S. Fuller, air raid warning official here, said that "by a process of elimination" the army concluded the unidentified plane was an enemy craft.

The blackout through the area was "near perfect" with the exception of Los Angeles where it was "spotty," he said.

The Pacific northwest, from Roseburg, Ore., to Alaska and west of the Cascade mountains, underwent its third night of blackout. Radio stations were closed down at 7:30 p. m. PST. 10:30 p. m. EST.) Prodded by Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York, director of civilian defense, Pacific coast cities began perfecting their air raid warden systems. He said San Francisco, and all other exposed cities, needed gas masks, more fire fighting equipment, more air raid wardens, more auxiliary fire fighters, more drills.

LISTS VICTIMS OF JAP ATTACK

Army Says 9 Officers, 112 Enlisted Men Killed In Raid on Hawaii.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The officially announced list of army personnel killed in Sunday's Japanese attack on Hawaii stood at nine officers and 112 enlisted men today with publication of names of additional victims.

The new list contained names of three officers and 85 enlisted men for whose death Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson "expressed his deep regret" in notification telegrams to the next of kin.

Germany and Italy Declare War

THE AXIS partners of Japan—Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy—have joined in declarations of war against the United States.

What has long been obvious is now clearly and unmistakably stated—and a real, obvious peril exists.

It is not enough to SAY "We will win"—it is necessary to quickly develop the military supremacy that will assure success.

Preparing for a Long, Hard War

ANOTHER of the things to which the attitude of Americans must become adjusted is that this is more likely to be a long war than a short one.

President Roosevelt put it thus: "It will not only be a long war, it will be a hard war. That is the basis on which we now lay all our plans."

This is not only a war against Japan—it is also a war against the mighty military machine of Hitler and whatever strength he can enlist or compel from other Axis dominated nations.

America's greatest immediate task—while there is yet time—is to concentrate on attaining capacity production of essential war materials of all kinds.

A start has been made—but it is only a start as compared with what MUST be done from now on—and what CAN be done by this unified nation which is well prepared to go even further in development of what is already the greatest industrial organization in the world.

This accomplishment will require closer co-operation and better co-ordination than has been considered necessary in past months and recent years. It will require at least temporary abandonment of partisan bias and use of the most capable men in America for work in their special fields of knowledge, regardless of political views or personal friendships.

This is a time in which animosities, even enmities, sink into insignificance alongside the great task of saving this nation from destruction and doing everything possible to minimize the ravages of war.

Now, also, it becomes highly important to assure capacity production of military and civilian supplies by small factories, as well as large, and to provide employment for all workers who can be spared from actual military service.

There will be need not only for war supplies but also for the production and distribution of vast quantities of civilian goods, for the nation's millions must continue to be fed, wages must be earned and taxes paid, in order that the war may be pursued to successful termination—no matter how long it takes.

President Roosevelt made it clear in his Tuesday night talk that there is no present need to curtail the normal articles of food and that shortages for civilian use are thus far confined to metals needed for defense production.

A proper course at this time appears to be willing co-operation with all requests or instructions from the national government, or local agencies thereof, and to continue the customary mode of life in the matter of purchases for personal and family use, as well as for gifts, as curtailment of purchases would cause serious economic dislocations with necessarily harmful effects.

It is not correct to use the word "sacrifice," our president says. "The United States does not consider it a sacrifice to do all it can to give one's best to our nation, when the nation is fighting for its existence and its future life. . . . Rather it is a privilege."

Regrettable Episode

SUCH an incident as that which occurred in the mayor's office at municipal building yesterday morning, when Mayor William J. Locke—in a fit of anger—struck a News-Journal reporter, is regrettable.

It is particularly regrettable, in that it publicly reveals Mayor Locke as a person lacking in self control, which is recognized as a primary essential of anyone occupying a position of authority.

As has been previously stated, the purpose of The News-Journal in assigning a reporter to cover the municipal building, and to see Mayor Locke, is not to satisfy curiosity but to serve its readers with news of public business to which they are entitled. Reporters are not chosen on the basis of brawn, nor is it deemed necessary that they have a bodyguard when they call at the office of a public official.

The inability of Mayor Locke to "get along" with reporters—and this is not confined to any one reporter—can be more fairly credited to traits of the mayor than to any fault of the reporter, as the same antagonistic attitude has been evidenced toward all reporters assigned to cover this beat.

Such an episode is unique as its marks the first time in thirty-six years recollection of mayors of Mansfield in which a chief executive of the city has shown a lack of understanding of the obligation of a newspaper to its community to publish the news, including that which relates to the conduct of public business.

Kindest interpretation of the words and acts of Mayor Locke is that he entered office as a comparative newcomer to Mansfield, without having had any experience in preparation for such large responsibilities, handicapped by stubbornness, quick temper, inclination to pout in a childish way, and disposed to take a dictatorial attitude toward those with whom he is associated, as well as toward reporters.

This is regrettable—as regrettable, in a small way, as the attitude of Hitler and Goebbels in Nazi Germany is in a large way, in witholding from newspapers all information they desire kept from the public. America—of which Mansfield is proud to be a part—still retains that "freedom of the press" which the nation's greatest men have held to be essential to preservation of liberties of the people, and proper restraint of officials and agencies charged with the operation of government.

Recently re-elected to a second term, which is to start the first of the year, it may be hoped that Mayor Locke will find time for such introspection as will make him cognizant of some of his own weaknesses, his inability to "get along" with office associates, and to bring him better understanding of the duties of his position. When this is done he will find—possibly to his amazement—that he will have no further trouble with reporters and that his service to the people of this community will be much enhanced.

TO THE LAST MAN

Propose Confab on 'World Order'

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

JUST WHO originated the idea isn't very clear, but the suggestion's floating about Washington that it would be a bright notion to have a conference of nations now, or as soon as possible, without waiting for the war's end, to dope out, in advance, a future peacetime "world order."

There's to be no thought of post-war vengeance at this proposed conference, according to the scheme's proponents.

On the contrary, their plan is to frame so attractive a program, in the whole world's interest, that no country in its right mind will be able to resist getting in on it. The present Axis powers are to be invited in, too, on the same terms as others.

It isn't argued that the compact will appeal to Herr Hitler, because it's to be absolutely just to all subscribers to it, and justice is exactly what he doesn't want. The theory is, though, that the bargain will look so good to Germans generally that they'll chuck Adolf overboard and agree to it.

The Italians, it's reckoned, will be easier to persuade. Plenty of information indicates that they're heartily sick of the war already.

Nationalities joining in the deal won't be asked to change their various internal forms of government, but only to adhere on an international basis. Consequently Russia shouldn't have any objection to lining up, even if it sticks to its Soviet system.

How delegates to the conference will be chosen isn't fully explained. The proposition still is too hazy for that so far.

It will be simple enough, however, for the United States, Great Britain, China, Russia, the Latin American republics and the not-yet-overrun parts of Europe, like Switzerland and Sweden, to make selections, somehow or other. Over-run folk, such as the Dutch and Belgians, probably will be negotiated with through their "government in exile," and the de Gaulle outfit likely will speak for the French.

Nor do the conference's promoters intend to exclude the Germans and Italians.

Emissaries from Fuehrer Hitler and Duce Mussolini naturally won't be acceptable, for the very essence of the scheme is the creation of a world order in which such regimes as theirs will be impossible. Germany and Italy, though, both have respectable exiles (Dr. Albert Einstein's a specimen) who can be wished into the consultation.

Boosters for the confab do assume, it seems to me, something of an improbability—that representatives of the warring and already conquered democracies can get together, at the present juncture, and agree on their post-war new order without a thought of vengeance upon the countries that still are fighting them or are keeping them in subjection.

It'll be a good deal of a dose to ask a Free Frenchman or a Netherlander not to insist on getting even with the Axis partners. It also can't but strain the international charity of the Chinese to urge them to be friends henceforward with the Japs, provided they'll stop killing them as they've been doing going on five years.

Listen World!

Look for the Beam

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THERE'S a dreary monotony about my letters these days, like a moan, going on and on, and me sitting by, helpless to heal the pain.

Mary's, for instance. (Yes, it's a true letter.) Mary is 43 . . . bent from washing and mopping . . . wrinkled and going gray. No beauty creams in Mary's career, but love that the Mint couldn't hold.

Mary lives 'round the corner from your house—down where the houses are smaller and shabbier, with the smell of corn beef 'n' cabbage forever warming the sill, and the sound of babies laughing. By all the count, Mary Higgins should be the happy woman, come this Christmas. For Jim has a steady job in the yards . . . and Eddie will be able to finish Hi . . . 'n' the baby has had her tonsils out . . . 'n' Nora's stopped running with that tough juke box gang.

Which, as I said, should be making a happy day for Mrs. Jimmy Higgins. But 'tisn't. All these luxuries for her as never knew shoe leather 'till she was goin' on sixteen, yet her heart's heavy as lead. An' for why?

"It's the faces," says Mary. "The faces as gets me down. The empty look to them, even though they're eating reg'lar. The lost look . . . as if they was seekin' 'n' seekin' but couldn't find."

Find what? Well, Mary's not one for words. But with Christmas time, the old feelings come back. The thoughts of the days when she'd be standing in the church and singing her thanks . . . and seein' the faces all around her shining like the dawnin' with the joy of it all.

"But the faces aren't shinin' now. Something's gone from them . . . out of their eyes 'n' their hearts. Is it, maybe, like some of these blabbin' smarties say . . . that the Bible's just a nice soundin' fairy tale . . . and there's no good Father, not really, to be lookin' for and leanin' on in the bitter bad days like these? And is that why there's the hungry look in the faces you see, though they've money in the purse and food in the pantry? For if that's the truth, then God help us all this Christmas."

God help us all indeed, Mary . . . but thanks be to that same God, it isn't the truth! Yes, I know it's a sad Christmas. And the pity is we've brought it on ourselves with our foolishness and hate. But we're not as lost or forgotten as you think, my dear.

You've heard of the "radio beam" haven't you, Mary . . . that great beam of light which goes flashing up into the night from every radio field . . . and up and up into the night, to guide the tired lads home. 'Tis a lovely thought—isn't it?—the picture of those weary men winging home "on the beam." And, better still, it's a true thought. For no matter how black the night or how stupid we are with the blundering, there's a beam waiting for us all, to lead us out of the dark.

It isn't made of electricity, that other beam. It's made of the love and courage, the tenderness and truth that have burned in men's hearts since the world began . . . with the light in God's heart answering. Not just the good men—mind you—but the decency in all men, good or bad, heathen or Christian. That's the beam that's shining over all the world these nights, Mary—the beam that will save us yet.

You're seeing the hunger and despair in the faces around you because you've learned to expect them . . . to look for them. And, it's true, they're there. But there's something greater there . . . warming the loneliness . . . shining behind the hunger. The beam's there, Mary! No matter how black the night . . . or how hopeless the pass . . . the beam is there as it always has been.

SO DON'T LOSE YOUR COURAGE, GIRL, OR LET YOUR HOPE GO LIMP IN THE DARKNESS AHEAD! LIFT YOUR HEAD . . . STEADY YOUR HEART . . . LOOK FOR THE BEAM INSTEAD!

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Unions, as Well as Contractors, Profit Heavily on Defense Work

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Recently the Washington Merry-Go-Round revealed that the house naval affairs committee had unearthed sensational evidence about huge profits being made by shipbuilders, aircraft manufacturers and other defense firms. Further details on this will be unfolded when the committee makes public its full report shortly.

Contract profiteering, however, won't be the only bombshell in this report.

The committee also will disclose some startling facts about labor union finances. The committee sent out questionnaires to 162 AFL and CIO international unions. So far 101, or about two-thirds have replied. A digest of their reports reveals the interesting fact that these unions had more than $73,000,000 salted away in their treasuries as of April 1, 1941.

Acquired through fees, per capita taxes and special assessments, the $73,000,000 represented an increase of about 25 per cent over assets on Sept. 1, 1939. The international unions profited to the extent of nearly $20,000,000 from the defense program.

In other words, these unions, like the contractors, did right smart for themselves out of the national emergency.

One of the biggest union beneficiaries of the defense program, the committee report will show, is the United Mine Workers, bossed by John L. Lewis.

The questionnaire received back from him disclosed that the UMW had a fat treasury balance in April of $4,014,075.80. Since then, there has been at least one special assessment, reported to have yielded another $1,000,000.

Note—Representative Carl Vinson of Georgia, committee chairman, is quitely planning to follow up his report with a bill to tax international unions the same as corporations. The Internal Revenue law now specifically exempts labor organizations. Under Vinson's bill international unions would be taxed but local unions would continue to be exempted.

Secret Bases In S. A.

ONE CLUE as to how carefully the Japanese and Nazis prepared for the attack on the U. S. was unearthed by the congressional committee which investigated aviation conditions in South America.

They discovered that six Messerschmidt planes recently were flown into Colombia by Japanese pilots. The planes and pilots later disappeared, but it is well known that Colombia is dotted with German "fincas" or plantations, many of them not too far distant from the Panama Canal. These plantations are isolated establishments, where no outsider can ascertain exactly what goes on.

The congressional committee also learned that the Japanese had secretly stored 8,000 tons of dynamite at Medellin, and that other high explosives were stored by Japanese fifth columnists.

Another revealing clue was the report that Japanese and Nazi agents had established twelve secret airbases in the Colombian jungles in connection with German plantations.

It was significant that Japanese struck first not at the Philippines, which is armed to the teeth with heavy bombers, but at Hawaii. Hawaii had sent its best war planes on to the Philippines . . . If the navy had read the newspapers it might have been better prepared last Sunday. Constantine Brown, foreign affairs expert of the Washington Star, predicted war with Japan ten days in advance and named Sunday, Dec. 7, as the starting date.

Lucky Hit.

THAT lucky hit by a British aerial torpedo on the propellors of the ill-fated Nazi battleship Bismarck, was a shot heard around the world in naval circles.

It has started reconsideration of designs that will result in far-reaching changes in naval construction.

Except for the direct hit on the Bismarck's driving gear, which slowed her down and enabled the British fleet to close in, the giant Nazi battlewagon might have escaped to rove the seas and prey on shipping. This fact has sunk home to naval builders and they have become extremely conscious of this Achilles Heel. Orders have gone out to devise protection for ships' propellors.

The answer to the engineering problem involved is not an easy one.

Bulges extending beyond a ship's propellors would offer some protection, but this would be offset by serious reduction in propulsive power and maneuverability. Some other solution has to be found.

One thing is certain: The Germans had none up to the time they built the Bismarck.

Leaded Order.

NEXT on the pan for grilling by the senate defense investigating committee will be OPM's Priority Division, long a little business peeve.

Specific target of the tough senate probers is the priority order banning the use of lead for making tin-foil. Reason given for this ukase was shortage of lead for defense purposes. Committee members are convinced there is more to it than this.

They scent the trail of the powerful Aluminum Corporation of America, long the object of deep suspicion and sizzling condemnation by the committee.

Hardest hit by the lead ban is the Reynolds Metal company, go-getting competitor of giant Alcoa. Several months ago, as a patriotic move when the aluminum shortage became acute, Reynolds, a big foil manufacturer, stopped using aluminum in their product. At considerable cost the company converted its plants to use lead instead.

The anti-lead priority order is a double-barreled blow to Reynolds. It not only puts the company completely out of the tin-foil business, with thousands of workers thrown out of jobs, but it also jeopardizes the firm's booming aluminum business that for the first time is giving Alcoa real competition.

Reynolds went into aluminum production by means of an RFC loan. As security RFC took a lien on all Reynolds plants.

Thus, while one government agency has a mortgage on Reynolds, another government agency is cutting the ground out from under Reynolds in regard to paying off its government mortgage.

The senate probers think some strange undercover doings will be brought to light that will crack certain high-placed defense heads.

Note—The senate probe will be a pleasant surprise to Guy Holcomb, scrappy young head of the justice department's Little Business Bureau, who has been deluged with complaints at the lead ban and has been trying to get relief for hard-hit little business men.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Did you know a recording engineer can pick up a phonograph record and read its grooves as easily as a blind man reads braille? He can.

In support of this, I offer you a little scene that took place between Judith Anderson and the engineer at the Victor recording studios in Manhattan last Thanksgiving day.

Miss Anderson's Thanksgiving was a busy one. With Maurice Evans, the Shakespearean star, and a cast of four supporting players, she spent the day recording an album of scenes from their current success "Macbeth."

After one of the readings Miss Anderson squinted at the huge wax disc that imprisoned her words . . . "Is that me?" she asked, pointing to a section of the grooves.

TOMMY DORSEY tells me the Dance Caravan put on by the RCA company was an interesting experience. It was to begin with a party aboard their special train at Grand Central, but the train got lost in the yards, and the guests were scattered over four miles of track, trying to find it.

Finally, the party was held and the train pulled out. But there was to be no relaxation. Outside of Buffalo Tommy broke his spectacles. Consequently, when Barry Wood pointed out Tommy to station platform fans, they took one look and said nix. Barry quickly obtained a pair of specs and thrust them on Dorsey's nose, and the fans came running.

In Cleevland he spent one afternoon conducting a high school band at a football game. There were two high school brass bands at the game, and Shep Fields conducted the other . . . It resulted in some furious blasting, with honors about even.

Then, in Detroit, where cut-rate dance tickets were available to school kids if they could get there by 9:30 p. m., two little girls waited so long to obtain the Dorsey autograph that it appeared they would miss the dance. It was already 9 o'clock, and the dance was 7 miles out of town.

When Tommy understood what was happening, he said, "We can't have anything like that going on, come on" . . . Whereupon he crowded them into the front seat of his car and drove them to the dance himself.

In sum, the caravan was a joy ride, but it left him exhausted and ready to take up his new chores in the films. He's off to the coast now to make "I'll Take Manila" for MGM.

Pullet Eggs

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE English Leghorn pullets we bought as chicks, last mid-June, are beginning to lay. They have been less trouble than any flock I ever raised. The reason, I guess, was because they were very good stock to start with, and we started them after the weather was warm and settled. Having no brooder house, we improvised one from a big fruit tree box. We put them at the edge of the back lawn, along the cornfield, near the outlet of the spring. It was not long before they could fend for themselves—drink from the flowing stream; eat grass in the little pasture; roam over the field of growing corn in search of bugs and worms; wallow in the cool shade at the edge of the corn field.

I kept growing mash in their feeders, but often they hurried away from this conventionalized ration to the pasture, the stream's edge, or the natural food of their own finding. They seemed to be enjoying themselves.

Now, smoothly and glossily white, with wide red floppy combs they emerge every morning at daylight, like sleepwalkers, to sing and mutter and gossip as they hunt the early worms. Presently from the mow, I hear a lusty cackle, then another, and another. They are shameless advertisers. Sometimes a hen far down in the cornfield gives a hysterical cry. Immediately all the rest take it up and start running flightily toward the barn with outspread wings.

Our small boys hunt the mows and mangers over for the small white eggs. We eat a big platterful for breakfast every morning. I find a kind of stimulating satisfaction in seeing those eggs disappear—and eggs taste better when big ones are selling for a nickel apiece in the market.

Eggs are among the best protective foods, ranking high for their vitamin and mineral content and as a food for growth. The yolks are high in iron and phosphorus—makers of blood and bone. The whites are an easily digested form of protein—maker and repairer of muscles. Eggs contain vitamins A, B, D and G—in quantities depending upon the diet of the hen.

Pullet eggs, though, are dainty in size: delightfully tender and their rounded little yolks stand up so well and make such pretty ovals in the skillet! They are the actual "first fruits" of the feathered flock — and nobody who has not raised a flock of hens of his own should ever eat them.

and an autocratic government.

"This is particularly true when the autocratic government has been preparing and fighting for several years and its men are veterans. We must be very careful not to underestimate the ability of the Japanese seamen.

"On the other hand, all students of history know that every war has three periods. They have been designated as the period of onset, the period of drag, when the war begins to weigh on the nations involved, and the finish.

"During the first period, it is inevitable that the free government, the government that depends on the consent of its people, carried on by persuasion instead of force, is at a distinct disadvantage.

"On the other hand, it is to be expected, and usually has been proved to be a fact, that in the later periods when it becomes a matter of endurance, the democracies win victories and win the war.

"It is the last shots, not the first shots, that count."

Stimson said of the attack on Hawaii that the war department itself as yet does not have a complete report, but said that this was no time for recriminations or accusations of blame.

Japs Claim 197 U. S. Planes Destroyed

Japan asserted officially today that its forces had destroyed 197 United States planes in two days' operations in the Philippines and had sunk an American destroyer, a submarine and a special service ship in operations off the Hawaiian islands.

A German broadcast quoted Tokyo as claiming the sinking of the 33,000-ton United States aircraft carrier Lexington off Hawaii.

Imperial headquarters at Tokyo asserted that Japanese troops, landing on America's outpost island of Guam, had taken about 350 prisoners, captured much material and seized key points in the harbor without loss.

The Berlin radio, heard in London by the United Press, broadcast a Tokyo dispatch that the Japanese had captured Agna, capital of Guam, the governor and military commandant, "Capt. George C. McMillan, and several officers—in all, 350 Americans."

A 3,000-ton American oil tanker was captured in the harbor, Tokyo asserted, and its captain and crew of 30 made prisoner.

It was asserted further that five of a formation of sever American planes had been shot down in air attacks on Wake island and that numerous "military objectives" had been destroyed.

A later communique asserted that in the Manila attacks a transport was heavily damaged and that an arsenal was exploded at nearby Cavite naval base.

Loss of five Japanese planes was admitted. Two of the planes, it was said, dived headlong into their objectives in suicide attacks.

It was said that two British gunboats were sunk by direct bomb hits in an attack on Hong Kong.

Japs Claim Capture Of Guam Capital

TOKYO — (Official radio received by AP)—A Japanese army communique declared Japanese landing forces occupied the capital of Guam today, capturing 350 Americans, including Capt. George C. McMillin, governor and other officers.

These, the communique said, included the vice governor and commandant of the naval station.

The Japanese claimed that the entire operation had been carried out without loss to the attacking force.

They said 25 Japanese found interned on the island were released and the landing force was continuing "mopping up operations."

A navy communique said a 3,000-ton United States tanker was captured in the Guam attack.

It declared that the Japanese, striking by sea from all sides of the island, gained their first foothold at dawn yesterday, when a naval landing party reached shore at Port Apra, on the west coast of the island 1,500 airline miles east of Manila. The port is little more than five miles from Agana, the capital.

Domei reported that a landing on Wake followed repeated Japanese aerial attacks. Barracks and warehouses were said to have been smashed and set ablaze. The news agency reported that seven United States planes were downed in a single day's dogfights in the skies over the island.

Bad War News Changes to Good

Grieved by the reported death of his son, Sergt. James H. Derthick, 22, of the army air corps, whose name appeared in the official list of soldiers killed in the Japanese raid on the island of Oahu, Paul Derthick of Ravenna, O., was overjoyed when he was informed by the war department that an error had been made—his son is alive, although wounded. Derthick is shown reading the telegram of good news.

Hint Cause of Hawaii 'Surprise'

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A theory that the clock-work regularity of the army's "dawn patrol" may have contributed unwittingly to the surprise of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor was advanced today by military men familiar with the Pacific outpost.

One officer recalled that while he was stationed in Hawaii, a squadron of army patrol planes would roar over his house at the same time every morning and return at the same time after sweeping a certain distance out to sea.

"You could set your watch by those flights," he recalled.

That regularity, he explained, may have been capitalized on by the Japanese when they made their daring aerial swoop on the great naval base.

"It is possible," he said, "that the Japanese sent some of their naval intelligence officers into Hawaii where they got jobs on the sugar plantations from which they could watch and time the dawn patrols every day.

"That would enable them—or any other expert observer, for that matter—to estimate pretty accurately how far the patrols exended over the sea and with that information, they could determine how close to the islands their aircraft carriers could approach to launch their attack planes without danger of being observed by the army patrols."

HITLER TALLIES CAMPAIGN LOSS

Reports 162,000 Killed In Assault on Russia.

BERLIN —(INS)— (Via official German wireless)—Adolf Hitler today announced German casualties in the Russian campaign as follows:

Dead: 162,314, wounded: 377,767, missing: 33,334.

(Editor's Note: Official Soviet announcements place German casualties in the neighborhood of 3,000,000.)

Russian war losses to Dec. 1, Hitler said, include 3,806,865 prisoners and 21,391 tanks, 32,541 guns and 17,322 planes captured or destroyed.

Col. Harry S. Fuller, air raid warning official here, said that "by a process of elimination" the army concluded the unidentified plane was an enemy craft.

The blackout through the area was "near perfect" with the exception of Los Angeles where it was "spotty," he said.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

The Walls Came Tumbling

CHAPTER XIV

Carol said it lightly, trying to conceal the effect of his words. He was right when he said it all didn't make sense. It didn't It left her feeling exceedingly self-conscious. No one ever had talked to her like that and, after all, Mr. Dennison was a comparative stranger.

"You think of everything," he admitted. "And what must you think of me?"

"I don't exactly know what to think of you."

"Well, there is one place we do meet on common ground. I don't either. I'd say as a rule I don't meddle much in other people's affairs and that is the discovery I was trying to tell you about. Why do you suppose I'm that way . . . sign of age, or something?"

"I don't think there is any good reason."

"Probably not." He uttered a rueful little laugh. "And none at all for trying to worry you with it. But you were kind to listen. Our lawyer friend lives along here somewhere." They were on Centertown,s main residential street now. "I'm just going to the door and leave some papers." Dennison explained again. "I wonder if I may ask one more favor of you, while I'm unburdening myself."

"Yes."

"In spite of the bad start I've made, I'd like very much to be . . . a friend to you and your father, too. May I be? So far as you are concerned?"

"I know of no reason why we can't be friends. I won't answer for Andy . . . I mean my father."

"Do you call him 'Andy.'?"

"I have for a long time. He wanted me to. It seems natural, now."

"I like that. Well, here we are . . ."

Leaning back in the corner of the seat Carol watched the tall, broad-shouldered figure of her companion stride up the walk to the front door of the house before which he had parked. She was deeply puzzled about the things he had said and wondered why his words had not brought some feeling of elation. He hadn't disguised the fact that he was interested in her and must have been since their first meeting. Perhaps she should be thrilled over it. But she wasn't. It must have been the way he had tried to explain his feelings. She might easily have been affronted by his manner. But she. wasn't. He seemed perfectly sincere. And yet—

A woman had opened the house door. Mr. Dennison merely tipped his hat, extended an envelope, and now he was coming back to the car.

To Carol's unbounded relief he appeared to consider his first topic of conversation as finished business and chatted entertainingly of other matters. He made no apparent effort to enlighten her about his past, but Carol learned that his home, until he finished at Tech always had been in Boston. His father, a physician, was dead. His mother and two older sisters still lived in the family home.

Carol found herself wondering whether that was the reason he was odd—or something. His early life might have been like Andy's. Aunt Cassie always was remarking that her brother would have been a very different man if his sisters hadn't been forever giving in to him. She was rather sorry when the Steel's gate was reached. Mr. Dennison had kept his word about that also. He was pleasant. Unmarried, too. That would reassure a number of girls she knew if she were to tell it.

"Won't you come in?" she said, as Dennison helped her from the car.

"I believe not, thank you. I have some work to do. But I'll remember the invitation. Thank you so much for going with me."

"I enjoyed the ride," Carol said simply. "Good night."

As she walked slowly to the porch steps she was thinking of Wige rather than the man driving up the street. After all, it did seem queer to have been out with anyone else. Even if he thought it too late to come in, Wige invariably escorted her to the front door. Somehow, it seemed a long time since she had seen him. She could understand his reasons for staying away. It would be difficult for Wige to adjust himself to this change of circumstances; she was experiencing the same trouble.

That feeling persisted the following day, together with another thought that had been taking shape in her mind. In the afternoon, shortly before the bank closed, she made a resolve. She was going to see Wige. She had no errand at the bank to serve as an excuse and she didn't care to go in merely to talk to him. One never knew who might be in there.

Dr. Silverthorne was out. She picked up the telephone hesitatingly. Her heart was beating a little fast as she called the number. If only Wige would chance to answer. She caught her breath when a chilling voice said, "Well?"

It was Mr. Higgins.

"Is this the Jericho Savings bank?" As if she didn't know.

"Yes, ma'am."

"I wonder if I might speak to Mr. Lennon."

"The bank is still open, ma'am. Who's calling him?"

"This is Miss Delaine. Never mind. I will call later."

"Oh! Miss Delaine! How are you? This is Mr. Higgins."

"I'm quite well, thank you. I'm sorry . . ."

"Not at all! Not at all! If you will hold the line just a second I will find our young friend."

He must have told Wige who was calling, for that "young friend" offered no more than a brief, "Hello, Carol," and waited for her to speak.

"If you are not busy tonight, Wige, can you come out to the house for a few moments?"

"I guess so." That didn't sound like Wige.

"Thank you. Then I'll look for you."

"Eight o'clock all right?"

"Yes, thank you."

That was all. But it was funny to be thanking Wige for coming to the house. To be inviting him, for that matter. Unexpectedly, Carol found herself in an uncertain frame of mind as the fateful hour neared.

Mrs. Elsie Smith had appeared on the scene as Aunt Cassie's helper in the kitchen and Carol was relieved from her nightly duty there for the first time in many years. A very strange sensation, bringing a premonition that it might be the first of many changes. But it would give her a chance to make leisurely preparations for anything she might wish to do later in the evening. There was another thing. What should she wear tonight?

She had no intention of going out with Wige. On the other hand if she were to "fix up" as Aunt Cassie would say, would Wige think that she was trying to impress him, to look the part of her changed fortunes? That would only widen the rift, make things more difficult. It would be bad enough as it was. In the end, she decided upon a dark wool dress with a touch of white at neck and sleeves. She arranged her hair even more simply than usual and put on no make-up whatever.

When the bell rang on the stroke of eight she answered it, greeted her suitor in what she hoped was the old-time way, ushered him into the parlor. There she seated herself with her back to the one lamp. Wige wore his best suit, but he usually did. Tonight, however, he sat stiffly upright and answered Carol's inquiries for his mother and Charlie in a curiously perfunctory manner. Half-annoyed and half-amused, his hostess finally suggested:

"Let's don't play at company, Wige. Please."

"I guess I don't know what you mean." Wige shifted uneasily in his chair.

There was something so formal in the excuse, and lame, that Carol wanted to shake him, even as she realized with a little pang that the old comradeship was gone tonight. Another time, she would have been all eagerness to tell Wige about the new car. It was out in the barn beside Amos' sedan now. Tip Gordon had delivered it and left word that he or one of his men would be glad to give Carol a driving lesson or two whenever she wished. She would have liked to watch Wige examine it in his methodical fashion and tell her whether he considered it a good buy. Amos said it was. Fun to have Wige try it out, be her first instructor.

Instead, she rested her chin in one cupped hand and studied her caller.

"Wige," she said slowly, "would you have come out tonight if I hadn't asked you?"

"Why . . . I hadn't planned exactly."

"But it's Wednesday, isn't it?"

FIFTY DISHES ON MENU

HAMILTON, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Discovery of a yellowed menu has lent credence to the legends of the fabulous feast of Delta Upsilon fraternity at its 43d annual convention in 1877 at Colgate university. The menu listed choices of 50 dosheS among the nine courses.

THEATERS

Rider Turns Flyer.

Dick Foran, the western star, trades his Arabian steed for an airplane in the current Bud Abbott-Lou Costello comedy, "Keep 'Em Flying," showing at the Ohio. Foran plays a circus stunt flyer who enrolls at a flying school, where Abbott and Costello are "grease monkeys," just to be near Carol Bruce. Miss Bruce and Martha Raye appear as U. S. O. hostesses and William Gargan is cast as a flying instructor. Cooperation of the War department was granted for the filming of the air scenes at Cal-Aero Academy in Ontario, Calif., where Uncle Sam is training future Army Air Corps officers.

Mirthful Story.

An almost even dozen songs ranging from sentimental ballads to modern boogie-woogie music are featured in "Swing It Soldier," the musical show playing at the Madison. Ken Murray and Frances Langford head the cast that also includes Don Wilson of Jack Benny's hour, Brenda and Cobina and Skinnay Ennis and his band. The story might be that of Frances Langford herself dealing as it does with an unknown girl with a glamorous voice who flashes into radio stardom after her first big audition. "Burma Convoy," with Charles Bickford and Evelyn Ankers is the second attraction.

Dietrich Drama.

Marlene Dietrich is starred in "Man Power," playing at the Ritz. Edward G. Robinson and George Raft play opposite the star. "The Gaucho of Eldorado," is the second attraction.

Espionage Theme.

Conrad Veidt and Valerie Hobson are starred in "Blackout," a spy thriller showing at the Park. Telling the story of an alluring woman spy who gets to London when a Danish freighter is halted in the English Channel by a British ship seeking contraband the picture is filled with acts of espionage and counter-espionage. Hay Petrie, an English actor, appears in the picture. "Two in a Taxi," is the second attraction.

Knock-Down Comedy.

The knock-down drag-out scenes that feature romantic screen interludes nowadays are enacted by Bette Davis and James Cagney in "The Bride Came C. O. D.," comedy showing at the Majestic. The two stars battle it out for supremacy in the desert where Cagney as a commercial pilot has grounded a wealthy debutante by order of her father as a measure of preventing her marriage with a ne'er-do-well. Eugene Pallette plays the father and the cast includes Jack Carson and Stuart Erwin.

MOP UP JAPS ON LUZON, HIT FOE BATTLESHIP

U. S. Forces Dispose of Enemy Troops, Bomber Sets Fire To 29,000-Ton Craft.

been no further developments after an attempted landing had been repulsed in the Lingayen area.

"Enemy detachments that landed on the Luzon coast are being disposed of," he said. "Mopping up operations are proceeding.

"Our escort planes took to the air during the noon air raid and were reported to have kept a formation of Japanese bombers away from Manila. The enemy aircraft are reported to have turned back and last were seen headed in a westerly direction."

"The situation is completely in hand," the spokesman said.

He declared a U. S. army bomber late yesterday attacked a Japanese battleship of the Hirinuma class about 10 miles northwest of northern Luzon island coast.

"The bomber secured three direct hits and two very close alongside," he said. "When the bomber left the battleship was blazing fiercely."

(Jane's Fighting Ships, authoritative naval manuel does not list a Hirinuma but lists a 29,330-ton Haruna as one of four ships of the Kongo class, laid down in 1911-12 and refitted in 1926-30.)

On land, the spokesman said, there have been no major developments since yesterday with the exception of light attacks by Japanese ground troops in the vicinity of Lingayen, a port on the Gulf of Lingayen on the western coast of Luzon. A Philippine army division stopped this thrust, he said.

(The mention of Lingayen placed the Japanese land forces nearer Manila on Luzon than at any time thus far. Previous action on Luzon has centered north of Vigan, about 200 miles north of Manila. However, the Japanese have been reported on Lubang island, 50 miles off the entrance to Manila bay.

Meanwhile, United States and Filipino troops were still battling the Japanese who landed along the 160-mile coastline between Vigan and Aparri.

The Philippine army received reports that the Japanese had been checked at Aparri, on the northern tip of the island 250 miles from Manila.

The Cavite naval base and Manila itself counted probably heavy casualties from fierce Japanese daylight raids yesterday.

Conservative press reports said at least 30 persons were killed and 300 wounded during the afternoon raids by 71 planes on six major objectives in this area.

Other reports said 37 were killed and 46 wounded in the Pasay district alone, near Nichols air depot, while 10 more were killed aboard one of two merchants ships hit when the bombers laid a precise line of probably 40 bombs among merchantmen clustered outside the Manila bay breakwater.

A lighter in Manila bay and several off Cavite were reported sunk.

Hospitals were crowded with wounded, mostly civilians. Some were wounded in the streets by shrapnel, presumably from anti-aircraft shells.

Unofficial reports said the Cavite base was heavily smashed with bombs hitting the city where the houses were closely packed.

Fires were still burning there and the flames were visible in Manila nine miles distant.

Varied reports said between nine and 15 Japanese planes were shot down and four American planes lost.

Manila had another alarm today, from 12:30 a. m. to 1:45 a. m. (11:30 a. m. and 12:45 p. m. Wednesday, E. S. T.) but no bombings were reported. The planes, apparently Japanese on reconnaissance, flew over the edge of the city.

(In Washington, the war department said the military and naval installations on Luzon had been subject to intermittent Japanese air attacks throughout the day, that on the naval base at Cavite being particularly heavy.)

The Japanese, besides starting huge fires at Cavite, sent up columns of smoke from Nichols air depot, bombed the ships outside the Manila bay breakwater and struck at Fort William McKinley.

The Japanese were reported to have bombed Clark field and Iba en route to Manila.

The Cavite dock was bombed and explosives also were reported to have fallen close to the Pan-American airways base.

As Firemen Get Red Cross Certificates

Thirty-two members of the Mansfield fire department received Red Cross certificates yesterday to mark the completion of a ten-week first aid and fire rescue program which they have been studying. Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, chairman of the Mansfield civilian defense committee, presented the certificates. The firemen will be used as the nucleus of a force to train civilian defense first aid corps. In the above picture, Judge Kalbfleisch is handing Fire Chief Charles Seeburger his certificate. Left to right are Seeburger, Capt. LeRoy Zimmerman, Judge Kalbfleisch, Bernard Hardy, who directed the Red Cross courses, Capt. Paul Young, Capt. L. J. Steele, Capt. F. R. Stahl and Capt. Andrew Herring.

BUICK BUILDS FOR DEFENSE
Our assignment: Building Pratt & Whitney valve-in-head aircraft engines for defense war.

ANY way you look at it, there's a long, long trail ahead of the next car you buy.

So in spite of all the sleek good looks and trim beauty this Buick has to recommend it, we frankly say: Better look a little deeper than sheer appearance.

For example, the type of engine your next car has will have a lot to do with how efficiently you use the gasoline you buy.

And Buick's engine is not only more efficient because it is a valve-in-head, but also because it's a FIREBALL straight-eight that squeezes extra power from every rationing of fuel.

Here's a drive-shaft that is a simple, sturdy steel rod, encased all the way from transmission to axle in a stout torque tube.

Buick springs—all-coil springs—never lose their liveliness, yet need neither lubrication nor care.

Buick's the only car with two carburetors, one to give low-cost operation at ordinary speeds, the other to cut in with extra power when needed—you'll have both range and pull with Compound Carburetion† under the bonnet.

Buick connecting rods are sturdier. Buick main bearings go twice as long under equal loads. Even Buick wheels help get maximum mileage out of tires.

In a word, here's an out-of-the-ordinary car for out-of-the-ordinary times—a tough, rugged, far-traveling beauty that's up to the job ahead, no matter how hard or long it may be.

So don't be satisfied to look—don't even be content to listen; go try this Buick—put it up against the toughest test you can conjure.

These days you need the best you can buy—and these days that's Buick.

WOMAN TO HUNT MAYAN GIANTS

Californian To Penetrate Jungles In Search of Mythical Tribe.

(By United Press)

PALENQUE, Mexico—Mrs. Karena Shields, pilot-archeologist of Crescenta, Cal., is organizing an expedition to penetrate the Central American jungle in search of a tribe of Mayan giants, long reputed to exist there.

Five previous expeditions have made the same attempt but no members ever came back.

Mrs. Shields, an apparently frail, blond woman, believes that her tiny stature, blond hair, blue eyes and very white skin may command the awe of the Mayans she hopes to find.

Mrs. Shields' apparent frailness is belied by the fact that she flew a plane here from her California home. She spent her entire girlhood on a huge plantation, bordering Campeche and Guatemala, and just on the outskirts of the "forbidden country."

She has made a lifetime study not only of the Mayan civilization and the Mayan race, but also of all jungle lore.

Mrs. Shields will be accompanied only by the manager of her plantation and several native boys. The party will undertake the trip on horseback.

The tribe of Mayan giants that is believed to exist somewhere in the deep interior of the jungle is thought to be in the possession of much information relative to the Mayan civilization that runs back 4,000 years.

Although various Mayan tribes have been found by explorers, Mrs. Shields said they have refused to break their centuries-old silence and little is known of them. They guard jealously their secrets, their past, their religious rites and especially the secret of their hieroglyphics.

She hopes to establish a personal contact that will break down this silence and give her information as to the whereabouts of the giant tribe.

It will take the party a week and a half to reach the first ruins of ancient temples, houses and cities, some of which are still inhabited by Mayan tribes.

POWER PEST

PITTSBURGH—(U.P.)—The common moth so deadly to woolen clothing also can play havoc with electric power lines.

Research engineers of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, revealed that the moths' appetite also goes for the wool in felt washers used in power line equipment.

The engineers reported they protect the washers by treating them with a liquid insecticide.

It takes seven five-cent pieces to buy a pound of nickel.

MASTER ARCHER CORNERS TITLES

Modern Robin Hood Recently Won 4th Successive Championship.

(By United Press)

PITTSBURGH—About 10 years ago E. Hill Turnock's son, a Boy Scout, walked into the house and said:

"Dad, how about making me a couple of bows and arrows. I want to play Indian."

The request was a bit unusual but Turnock complied and turned out a fairly good set. Like many another boy, young Turnock soon lost interest in archery.

"But not really," grinned Turnock as he successfully defended his Pennsylvania Archery Championship in the statewide tournament here recently. It was his fourth successive state championship.

"We got about seven dads and 22 youngsters in the neighborhood interested in archery," he added. "Now, I'm shooting all the time, my wife's shooting regularly, my son still shoots occasionally, one of my daughters has become an archer and my other daughter is just taking it up."

Turnock, 45, an engineer, has held the state title the past four years. He also won the championship in 1935 and 1938 and has held the National Field Archery title four times.

In retaining his state championship at Altoona last year, Turnock set a record score of 2,090 points.

What does it take to become a champion archer?

"Well, pretty much the same type of coordination it takes to become a standout in any of a dozen or more sports, I guess," the title holder replied. "I'll say this about archery though, the muscular tension at the time a bowman releases the arrow is terrific—just the opposite of a gun marksmen when he pulls the trigger. Maybe that's why few expert gunners become good archers."

Turnock goes hunting every year on the special preserve set aside by the state for archers. He prefers tracking down deer but occasionally goes out for rabbit. He got his buck last year, shooting it through the heart.

"I'm not bragging about that," he said. "The buck came real close."

Turnock formerly made all his own bows and arrows, until he discovered he could buy better arrows than he could make. He believes more people should take up archery as a sport.

CLUB ENTERTAINED

CRESTLINE — Card games at the home of Mrs. F. W. Beck followed dinner at the Y. M. C. A. when the Christmas party of the Friendship club was held Tuesday evening.

Seeks His Wings

Clark M. Garber, jr., of Butler, shown above, is one of the 254 aviation cadets at Randolph Field, Texas, who will complete basic training tomorrow and will then be ready for the final 10 weeks of specialized instruction in combat flying with the U. S. air corps.

Hug the Ground To Escape an Exploding Bomb

LONDON—(INS)—Do you know how close you can get to a bomb before it kills you?

The record escape of this war is that of a man who was 27 feet from a heavy bomb when it exploded. He had heard it coming down, and threw himself on the ground. He is all right today.

Another remarkable escape was in a case where five people were in a shelter which was hit by a bomb.

Four were killed. The fifth, within five feet of the explosion, was scarcely hurt. The force of the bomb in his case had apparently been minimized by part of the shelter.

A boy escaped when he was in the open within 35 to 40 feet of a big bomb explosion.

Another bomb exploded 25 to 30 feet from a shelter. Four people were inside. One was killed. Another, badly hurt. A third slightly hurt; and the fourth came out without a scratch.

FROM PENNSYLVANIA

HARRISBURG, Pa.—(U.P.)—The Pennsylvania Commerce department doesn't know about the beer, but if you're eating pretzels they'll lay three to five they come from Pennsylvania. The commonwealth produces 62 per cent of the 52,331,396 pounds of pretzels made annually in the United States.

HEADS STAFF

GALION—At the annual meeting of the City hospital staff, Dr. O. R. Kackley was elected president. Dr. C. J. Griebling was chosen vice president, and the secretary-treasurer is Dr. William W. Corwin.

Retiring officers of the staff are Dr. Clarence Adams, president; Dr. Kackley, vice president, and Dr. R. M. Malone, secretary-treasurer.

Prepares Set of Principles for Army Division

INDIANTOWN GAP, Pa.,—(INS)—Soldiers of Pennsylvania's famed 28th Division have been urged by Maj. Gen. Edward Martin, division commander, to live up to this set of principles:

1. Conduct yourself as you would in your own home.
2. Courtesy is the earmark of a gentleman and a soldier.
3. Cooperation is the spirit of the team.
4. Always try to interpret the intention and spirit of the order, and then carry it out
5. Verbal or written orders must be brief and clear.
6. All troops must be informed of the part they are to play.
7. Decisions must be made promptly. Speed is essential.
8. Reckless driving or speeding is not playing the game.
9. Equipment must be maintained in accordance with regulations.
10. Strive to avoid damage to public or private property.
11. It is against orders to "hitch hike."

Facing the Problem of Graying Hair

By MME. QUI VIVE

What's that—a little streak of white at the temples? A mean trick of Time. What's the sense in it? Why couldn't mama Nature supply us with locks that are proof against fading? A woman sits down and puts her mind on the subject.

There are thre ways of meeting the problem. She can take the "oh what's the difference? attitude. She is middle-aged, has her man, her children are growing up, is enjoying a comfortable, settled feeling.

"My face," she comments to herself as she has one of those secret conferences before the mirror, "is not precisely what it was when I was 18 and a dancing belle. It has held up fairly well considering the battles I have had with life, debts and disappointments. Perhaps the snowy crest will soften those tissue detours in my skin. Anyhow, why fuss and bother with hair dye! I'll wait and see."

Should she do that or should she fly into a passion of resentment against fate and birthdays! In that state of mind she will declare that she will not tolerate gray hair, and that's all there is to it. She will be rabid, panicky, distraught, crazy in the head. Suppose she dyes. Then she stays dyed.

There is the uncertain lady who cannot make up her mind. She does a lot of talking and the family gets pretty sick of it. One week she decides that the pepper and salt state of her brain thatch is unendurable. She reads about hair dyes. She talks about them with the drug clerk. She has a consultation with a beauty operator and is almost persuaded. She sits on the fence and she is not happy: fence sitters seldom are.

The years go by and the mental confusion continues. She belongs to that class of women who can never make a decision, must ever be asking what other people think, when other people have enough of their problems to think about.

What she really wants is for somebody to grab her, take her by force, dunk her head in the dye-pot, and take full responsibility for the results, whatever they may be.

In these days, white hair does not necesarily signify advanced age, nor does it suggest that it is time for a woman to tote out her little ladder and climb up on the shelf. Many prematurely gray women are blessed with beauty. White hair imparts delicacy to the skin, brings out the color of the eyes. It permits the wearing of gay colors. A red hat on a white head is stunning.

All arguments for white hair are lost on the dye-mad woman. If gray hair makes her unhappy, she could not endure it.

CROCHETED ACCESSORIES PATTERN 404

Are you a campus queen—a business girl? Then these easily crocheted mittens will lend sparkle to your outdoor activities! One has a cross-stitch trim—the other uses up gay scraps. Pattern 404 contains instructions for making mittens in small, medium and large sizes; illustrations of them and stitches; materials required; photograph of pattern stitches.

Send ten cents in coin for this pattern to The Mansfield News-Journal, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly pattern number, your name and address.

Women with larger figures must be particularly well-groomed to preserve a fashionable appearance. Marian Martin says a well-cut slip is the first essential—and offers you Pattern 9789. The princess panelling is especially slimming and smooth-fitting on larger sizes. The side panels are cut in-one with the shoulder straps — it's much more comfortable. Don't you like the way each panel ends in a scallop? You may use dainty lace on bodice, and trim the scallops to match or omit them altogether for a straight hemline.

Pattern 9789 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36, slip and panties, requires 3⅝ yards 39 inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address and style number.

Send your order to The Mansfield News-Journal, Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th St., New York, N. Y.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"I'M NOT GOING very far, nor shall I be gone long," my father said. "I'm going to escort my daughter to the Lansfield, and when I have left her there safely I shall come directly back here.

"I have done everything that can be done at the hideaway, and I'm coming back to your basement in the hope of getting something out of that gangster with the shattered ankle when he gets over the effect of the sedative Dr. Twitchell gave him.

"Both the other men are still unconscious," my father said, and I saw Harry Underwood give him a glance of comprehension. He knew, as we all did, that while the unharmed gangster would suffer no ill effects from the treatment, he had been given a sedative powerful enough to keep him unconscious until it was time to remove him to the hideaway; indeed, I amended my own guess; until after he should reach there.

"You certainly administered a scientific jolt to the biggest man," my father said, and his voice eyes held frank admiration for Harry's skill and physical prowess.

One Problem Simplified.

"Dr. Twitchell says he won't come back to consciousness until long after nightfall, so the problem of getting two of the men down to the hideaway will be simple."

"You don't anticipate any trouble with the little fellow do you?" Harry asked. "He's more of a mouse than a rat, if you ask me, although I fancy he's venomous enough, too."

"That's why I'm coming back—because I share your opinion of him," my father said. "Lillian, will you mind if I bring his cot into the library on the first floor when he recovers consciousness, which ought not to be long now? Dr. Twitchell gave him only enough to keep him from suffering until his leg could be patched up."

"You ought to know that the house and everything in it are at your service," Lillian said, with an emphasis which proved she was speaking with sincerity, despite the flamboyance of her vocabulary.

Hopes To Get Clues.

"Thank you, I do know it," my father said, "but I shall not need to trespass upon your kindness long. However, I have an idea that if I can get that lad away from his fellows and assure him that as far as his companions will know, he will have been as unconscious as they all through the day, I may be able to get something out of him by arousing his cupidity."

"Do you suppose he knows anything of value?" Harry asked, and Miss Whitlock put her hand up in a mandate for silence.

"All right, I'll be good," he said. Then my father, who had not noticed the by-play, answered Harry's question.

Will Overlook No Chances.

"Not much," he said. "As I said before, they're simply hired gunmen, but I might be able to pick up something, and we must not let slip a single chance for contact with any member of that organization, no matter how minor a cog he may be."

He punctuated his sentence with an emphatic nod, then looked at Miss Whitlock.

"Do you need my daughter for the rest of the afternoon?" he asked.

"Not for work of any kind," the nurse replied, adding with a smile "but I shall be very glad to have her come back whenever she can."

"May she not come back and stay the night?" Lillian pleaded, and I was glad that she had not mentioned my promise to return. My father might have other plans for me, I realized, and I was much relieved when he nodded assent to her query.

Madge To Return.

"That is what I have planned for her to do," he said, "unless, of course, something comes up requiring her presence elsewhere. If such a contingenc should arise, I will advise you. How soon can you be ready to come with me, Margaret?"

"As soon as I put on my hat and coat," I told him. Then I went to Lillian's closet, where Miss Whitlock had put my things, and in less than a minute I was standing beside him, ready to depart. He gave me a glance of approval.

"We will both be back later. Good-bye," he said. Then we were out of the room and descending the stairs to the first floor. As we reached the outer door, the bell rang violently, and my father gestured to a sheltered nook between the door and the window.

"Stand there," he commanded, "until I see what this is."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

JUST HEAR HIM SHOUT

How is your hearing? Sometimes it has to be pretty acute—mentally speaking — to receive some of the subtle messages which are put forth around the table. There are times, though, when your partner's bids fairly scream at you. If an opponent has made a pure psychic bid, and your partner holds the cards which enable him to know it for what it was, he may shout at you at the top of his voice, as it were, to tell you all about it. Please do not, at such a time, continue to believe the faker of an opponent, but heed your partner and put your trust in him.

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♦	Dbl
Pass	2 ♦	Pass	2 ♥
2 NT	4 ♥

What a pass that was by South. There is hardly any way his partner could have bid more strongly except by calling slam himself. That bid of the opponents' diamond suit, conventionally forcing the side to game in something, after hearing his partner's double, was such a powerful call that it is almost never heard at the bridge table. It was rightly justified, of course, after his partner's double, which indicated readiness for either major. North's bid must be interpreted as a force to game in one or the other of those suits, or No Trumps, even if South had a minimum double.

Then notice what North did as soon as he heard what was his partner's suit, hearts. Paying no attention to West's psychic 2-No Trumps, he hopped all the way to game in it, guaranteeing an emphatically fine fit. Even with a near minimum double, South should have considered a slam invitation. With his sockdolager and marvelous distribution, he either should have bid some sort of slam at once or else used the slam convention in use, the Blackwood.

A grand slam is there against any lead, if the spades are guessed right, as they should be after East's indication of shortness in them by his diamond psychic. It was a cinch after the club A was lead and ruffed.

Tomorrow's Problem.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, December 12.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

AN UNUSUALLY exciting and intriguing day is forecast from interesting astral forces of intervention. There may be a sudden and surprising upheaval which may uproot long-standing crystallized and stagnant conditions, to make way for exciting, thrilling and novel and well as constructive programs, with all things under dynamic spur and old static things coming to life. This may involve new methods, objectives, environs and associations.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year which may have exciting and dramatic experiences, with a dynamic spur to old stagnant and outgrown situations, fanning them to life, full accomplishment, new values and thrilling achievements of duration, dependability and security. Radical change, fresh tactics, plans, strange persons and places figure in such progress.

A child born on this day may have remarkable equipment for a progressive and perhaps spectacular career. It should be daring, original, independent.

Amazing Cough Relief, Mixed In Your Kitchen

No Trouble. No Cooking. Saves Big Dollars.

Yes, ma'am, right in your own kitchen you can easily mix a cough medicine that is a wonder for quick results, and gives you about four times as much for your money. And it's no trouble—a child could do it.

You'll need a syrup. Make it by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved No cooking needed.

Now get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, and pour it into a pint bottle. Then add your syrup. There you have a full pint of really remarkable medicine for coughs due to colds. It lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it

And does it do the work! You'll say it beats anything you ever tried. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Eases the soreness, and lets you rest at night.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

Program Given By Parents at P. T. A. Meet

Bowman School P. T. A. members held a business meeting and program at the school Tuesday evening. Mrs. L. D. McVicar, president, conducted the business session. Mrs. Estelle Smith, music director at the school, led pupils from the fifth and sixth grades in singing Christmas carols. Miss Frances Brinkerhoff accompanied them at the piano. Mrs. Philip Woolard gave a report on the work being done by the health committee. Raymond Dent gave a report on the P. T. A. convention held recently in Columbus.

During the business session a library committee, including Raymond Dent, chairman, Miss Florence White, Russell Bell and Mrs. Don Hartig, was appointed. Members of the school patrol will be guests of honor at a covered dish dinner to be given by the P. T. A. on Feb. 10.

Following the business an amateur show was presented by a group of the parents. Mrs. Mary Schmall was the announcer. Those taking part in the show were Mr. and Mrs. John Bacquet, Emmett Izer, Robert Stevenson, Mrs. Leroy Stroble, Charles Piatt, Robert McCullough, Mary Grettan, Mrs. Robert McCullough, Harry Constance, Mr. and Mrs. Don Hartig, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bell and Mrs. Robert Burns. Here's How to Wash Rayons, Silks and Wool
1. Test patch in water for color-fastness. If color runs, it's not washable. (Test woolens in soapy water.)
2. Wash garments separately, by hand.
3. Use lukewarm suds: Dissolve Super Suds completely in warm water, add cold for lukewarm suds.
4. Do not soak. Wash quickly, gently. Don't rub, wring or twist. Woolens shrink from rubbing—avoid any excessive handling while wet.
5. Rinse thoroughly, gently, in clean, lukewarm water. Roll in towel; don't leave there. Never dry woolens in excessive heat or direct sun.
6. Shape garment over board before ironing. Use a moderate iron.
7. Certain type weaves and prints should not be washed. Look for washability guarantee when you buy.

B. P. W. Club Has Dinner-Meeting At Local Hotel

There were 101 members and guests of the Business and Professional Women's club in attendance at the December dinner-meeting held last evening in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Tables were decorated in the traditional Christmas colors of red and green. Snowmen, Christmas trees and bright-colored tree ornaments completed the yuletide decorations.

Arrangements for the dinner were made by the hospitality committee: the Misses Mary Eggert, chairman, Helyn Brown, Ethelyn Davisson, Blanche Eckels, Lucy Spell and Gwen Fields. A short business meeting was conducted by the president, Miss Mary Gruber, who gave a Christmas message and prayer. Reports of the standing committees were given. Social Service Chairman Miss Minnie Laudon announced that the white gift offering is to be presented to organizations doing Christmas work for the needy. Members interested in a Red Cross first aid course were asked to contact Miss Catherine Riggs, health and recreation chairman.

Program arranged by Miss Nina Pollock and her committee, the Misses Ann Varba, Wilhelmene Cahall, Esther Lytle, Thelma Reed and Alameda Sharp, consisted of selections by the Little Symphony orchestra, directed by Eugene Weinberger, piano duets by Mrs. Cahill and Miss Reed, and selections by the glee club, with Myrtle Booth as director. The orchestra is comprised mostly of student musicians. Organized three years ago, its purpose is to bring a better understanding of symphonic music to the community. The orchestra has presented programs before groups in Shelby, Crestline, Galion and Mansfield.

The executive board of the club will meet on Tuesday, Dec. 30, at the Evergreen restaurant.

Amazing Cough Relief, Mixed In Your Kitchen

No Trouble. No Cooking. Saves Big Dollars.

Yes, ma'am, right in your own kitchen, you can easily mix a cough medicine that is a wonder for quick results, and gives you about four times as much for your money. And it's no trouble—a child could do it.

You'll need a syrup. Make it by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed.

Now get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, and pour it into a pint bottle. Then add your syrup. There you have a full pint of really remarkable medicine for coughs due to colds. It lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it.

And does it do the work! You'll say it beats anything you ever tried. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Eases the soreness, and lets you rest at night.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

THE SAME GO-GETTIN' SUDS ARE SAFE FOR RAYONS, COTTONS, SILKS AND WOOL! SAFE IN WATER, SAFE IN SUPER SUDS!

EXPERTS RECOMMEND SUPER SUDS
Here's How to Wash Rayons, Silks and Wool
1. Test patch in water for color-fastness. If color runs, it's not washable. (Test woolens in soapy water.)
2. Wash garments separately, by hand.
3. Use lukewarm suds: Dissolve Super Suds completely in warm water, add cold for lukewarm suds.
4. Do not soak. Wash quickly, gently. Don't rub, wring or twist. Woolens shrink from rubbing—avoid any excessive handling while wet.
5. Rinse thoroughly, gently, in clear, lukewarm water. Roll in towels; don't leave there. Never dry woolens in excessive heat or direct sun.
6. Shape garment over board before ironing. Use a moderate iron.
7. Certain type weaves and prints should not be washed. Look for washability guarantee when you buy.

Has Lead In Play

Miss Gertrude Kullman, Mansfield girl attending Ohio university at Athens, has been chosen to play a leading role in the comedy production, "No Mother to Guide Her," at the university. The play will be presented Dec. 10, 11 and 12. Miss Kullman was also recently made a member of the National Collegiate Players, a dramatic honorary society.

Mary Washington Chapter of D. A. R. Has Program

A dessert-luncheon was enjoyed by members of Mary Washington chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at the Women's Club recently. Twenty-eight members and one guest were present. Hostesses were Mrs. George Buchan, Mrs. C. G. Hillier, Mrs. Charles W. Fuchs and Mrs. Avery C. Hand. Mrs. David N. Roller and Mrs. David N. Feiser presided at the table.

Mrs. Roller, regent, welcomed Mrs. Justin H. Sanford as a new member of the organization. Mrs. Hand had charge of the sealed Christmas program. Carols of various countries were sung and their histories given by Mrs. Charles Anglin, whose piano accompaniment was played by Mrs. George Searle. An interesting talk on "Christmas Customs Here and Abroad" was given by Mrs. Hand. After the program, Mrs. Feiser announced that gifts for youngsters at the Children's Home would be turned over to Mrs. Harry V. Downs, of the home, who was then introduced by Mrs. Feiser. Mrs. Downs gave an interesting talk about the children and life at the home.

FRIENDLY HOUSE TO HAVE BUSY YULE SEASON

Senior Optimist Club Opens Holiday Observance With Party For Juniors.

Plans were underway today to provide Friendly House with one of the largest Christmas celebrations the settlement has ever witnessed in spite of the war curb on U. S. holiday observances.

Festivities will start Dec. 17 with a dinner given by the Senior Optimist club for members of the Friendly House Junior Optimist club. The dinner will be held in St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church.

On Dec. 18 the Mothers' club will hold a party at the Friendly House camp at 6 p. m. More than 50 persons, are expected to take part in a covered dish dinner.

Classes in the settlement kindergarten classes will be interrupted at 10 a. m. the following day when the youngsters will be visited by Santa Claus and each receive a gift.

Largest party will be held Dec. 22 to which all patrons of settlement facilities will be invited and gifts given to all youngsters 14 years of age or younger. This party will be held in the Friendly House itself and will begin at 7:30 p. m.

A holiday dance, Jan. 2, sponsored by the settlement Dance club will conclude festivities. The dance will begin at 8:30 p. m.

BLAST OF BOMB SELDOM FATAL

Throw Self on Ground When You Hear Bomb Coming, Says Researcher.

(By United Press)

LONDON—A young English anatomist, Prof. S. Zuckerman, famous for his researches into the anthropoid ape, believes the human body can resist bombs and their blast far more effectively than bricks, mortar and concrete.

Since the bombing of Britain's towns and cities by the luftwaffe began it has been generally held that blast would destroy the lungs or other vital parts, but the main damage is due to bruising caused by the impact of the blast wave on the body's wall.

Some people have been killed by the blast itself, but hundreds have escaped even the slightest injury, while brick and concrete buildings have collapsed.

Others have been in rooms in which bombs have exploded. The buildings have collapsed around them, but they have escaped unhurt. One man was only 25 feet away from a 2,000-pound bomb.

If a person throws himself down when he hears a bomb coming, there is only a slight chance of being hurt by the blast itself. Most of air raids casualties are caused by falling debris.

Research and experiment on this question of bomb blasts have resulted in the design of shelters being altered. Even if bombs fall immediately beside these shelters, the risk of death through blast is considerably minimized.

A government laboratory recently designed a new type steel helmet for fire-watchers and civil defense workers. It was criticized on the ground that it was not as strong as the type used by the services.

It was tested. This is what happened. Live ammunition was fired at one of them at a velocity second. The helmet was only of between 350 feet and 400 feet a slightly dented.

Intensive research also has been made by government scientists into glass protectives. It has been found that the most useful of all is adhesive netting, varnished over. This system is being used universally on all the glass windows of the trains, buses and underground railway trains of London.

RESEARCH TO GO ON.

PHILADELPHIA — (U.P.) — Despite the tremendous war effort and the constant dangers from bombardment, the American Philosophical society has decided that scientific reasearch must go on in England. For that reason, the society announced that it had sent a grant of $10,000 to Britain to be used by scientific societies in furtherance of their work.

GEN. JOHNSON: Food Prices Lower Here, Survey Reveals

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—It is too early to go head-hunting for a scapegoat for the Pacific catastrophe, particularly at Pearl Harbor and the Philippine Islands. The damage done to our defenses seems to be so terrific that an eventual head-hunt is pretty certain—speaking now of individuals whose official skulls must roll in the sawdust basket for some garrison's Sunday morning snooze.

Johnson

But it is not too early to seek out the direct responsibility that, considering the whole situation in the Pacific, could permit such a relaxation of vigilance and disposition of troops and ships as would permit a daring raid on three such powerful stations as Pearl Harbor and, from all that appears, Cavite and Olangapo.

On Armistice day this column called attention, not only to the practical certainty of such a sudden attack, to the absolute certainty of a very early war in the Pacific, and to the disposition to treat that ocean and our defenses there as a sort of side show to the main circus in Russia, but it showed, among other things, that such a Japanese war would close one of the only three routes by which we can send our promised billion dollars worth of supplies to our great Democratic ally, Russia (Vladivostock, the most practical) —the other two being through Murmansk by rail to central Russia and through the Persian gulf.

The second, or Murmansk route, is threatened with control from Finland—which explains the British declaration of war on that great aggressor nation. The third (Persian gulf) is likely to be useless. The Vladivostok route is now corked up by the Japanese action. The situation thus has more adverse aspects than appear on the surface, and they came into being since Sunday night.

Somebody certainly is responsible for an insufficient preparation in this major field of the large strategy and this lack of proper emphasis on the Pacific area.

Considering the distance of the scenes of these hit-and-run Japanese actions from the bases from which they were launched, a terrible revenge should be taken on the attacking forces before they can return home if our navy and air forces are as good and the Japanese are as poor as we have been led to believe.

In addition, our officials in charge of certain raw materials such as tin and rubber are already beginning to talk about stringent shortages in those imported commodities by reason of our now being cut off from the East Indies and Burma.

Relying upon news reports alone, it is true that our supremacy in capital ships in the Pacific has been reduced in respect to Japan. In view of our overall world supremacy in these ships, this catastrophe seems a little strange. Considering the reported combined strength of Dutch, British and American air forces there is far from being any Japanese supremacy in the air.

If Britain and America can maintain practically an uninterrupted stream of lend-lease supplies through the submarine infested waters of the Atlantic, we and Britain certainly should be able to secure the rubber and tin needed from the Pacific areas.

If we can't do so, this should be added to the other considerations on the side of a conclusion that our Pacific situation was treated, on its strategic side, more like an orphan foundling than ever.

At least these circumstances should be given an airing at the earliest convenient moment. Responsibility for this sort of thing usually goes very far up in the scale or rank, yet the practice ordinarily is to fix the guilt on a subordinate.

The decisions that fixed these dispositions in the tremendous area of the Pacific ocean could have been made only by men of the very highest rank and responsibility in, or in connection with, the navy and its air force.

DELEGATION IN COLUMBUS FOR TAX FUND FIGHT

Mansfield Councilmen, Auditor Leave To Demand Share of State Surplus.

Four Mansfield representatives left for Columbus early today to attend a state-wide meeting of Ohio municipal authorities, called to demand a share of the state's sales tax surplus.

Three city council members and City Auditor Paul L. Kelley made up the Mansfield delegation which said it hopes to obtain a surplus share to be used to make badly-needed improvements at the municipal airport.

Mayor William J. Locke, who previously said the movement was "political" and would not definitely state whether he would or would not attend the meeting, was out of the city today.

Locke visited his office for a few moments and then left. Other officials said that he had gone to Columbus but they were unable to say whether he was attending the tax surplus meeting.

Council members making the trip were Fred Miller, J. J. Kutschall, and Arthur L. Croak. Council passed a resolution, favoring the investigation of the surplus question at its regular December meeting.

Gov. John W. Bricker has said repeatedly that he will not call a special session of the legislature to distribute the sales tax surplus to local governmental units. The governor estimates the surplus at $11,000,000 but others have placed it between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000.

Mayor Frank J. Lausche of Cleveland has been leading the campaign of several Ohio city officials to obtain a share of the surplus to ease their debts. Yesterday, his group brought out a new argument for the distribution, pointing out that additional funds would be needed to finance local civilian defense plans.

DOWN TO 10

Mercury Plunges To New Low; Snow Expected Tonight.

The mercury plummeted to 10 degrees this morning, the lowest for the year, only one week after an all-time high for December, 65 degrees, had been recorded in Mansfield.

The forecast was for fair and colder today and tonight with possible snow flurries tonight. Friday will bring snow and somewhat higher temperatures, the forecast said.

Yesterday's high was 30 degrees, two below the freezing mark. Average for the past 24 hours was 20 degrees, 10.5 lower than the 16-year average. At noon today, the thermometer had climbed to only 23 degrees.

Light snow fell in northern Ohio early today and the state highway department said there were slippery spots on roads in the vicinity of Cleveland, Painesville, Chardon, Ashtabula and Warren.

FIRE TRAPS TWO IN OHIO MINE

35 Escape Injury; Swastikas Found on Walls of Powhatan Shaft.

(By United Press)

POWHATAN — Fire raged for several hours today in the No. 1 coal mine of the Powhatan Mining company, apparently trapping two miners after at least 35 others escaped unharmed.

The fire, apparently set off when an electric cable short-circuited, broke out only one day after swastikas were discovered painted on the walls of the mine.

A 36-year-old Polish miner, taken into "protective" custody by Belmont county authorities yesterday, admitted he drew the Nazi emblems "just for fun." He later was released and was reported at work in the mine at time of the fire.

There were conflicting reports on the number of men in the shaft. A company official said 180 were at work and the state highway patrol reported 37. Two men working beyond the point of the fire's origin were unaccounted for.

The company spokesman said a short circuit in an electric cable caused the fire, which started about two miles from the entrance of the mine, one of the largest in the eastern Ohio coal field. The spokesman said there was no explosion.

DEATH CLAIMS JOHN SLAYMAN

Loudonville Man, Found Ill By Neighbors, Dies at Ashland.

LOUDONVILLE — John Slayman, 78, died last night in Samaritan hospital at Ashland.

Mr. Slayman, who lived alone, was found unconscious in the yard of his home yesterday by neighbors who called a physician. He was believed to have suffered a stroke.

A life-long resident of Loudonville, he was a member of the Trinity Evangelical and Reformed church.

He is survived by one brother, Leo of Akron. Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Friday in the Gilbert funeral home, with Rev. C. W. Krause, pastor of the Trinity Evangelical and Reformed church. Burial will be in Loudonville cemetery.

YOUTHS IN COURT

Driver, 17, Can't Drive Cars for 30 Days.

Two 17-year-old youths lost their driving permits for 30 days yesterday when they were found guilty in county juvenile court of violating traffic regulations.

They were Robert Dean McCumber, Shelby, and Joe Shambre, jr., Seventh avenue. Both were cited on charges of careless and reckless operation of cars; Mansfield police said Shambre was swerving a car over an icy street and drove through a stop sign.

EYE-WITNESS DESCRIBES HOW PRINCE OF WALES WENT DOWN

(Editor's Note: Following is the first eye-witness account of the sinking of the British battleship Prince of Wales and battle cruiser Repulse by O. D. Gallagher, special correspondent for the London Daily Express and International News Service.)

By O. D. GALLAGHER
(INS Special Correspondent)

SINGAPORE—(INS)—I saw the Prince of Wales attacked. I saw her sink.

I was aboard the Repulse yesterday when that battle cruiser and the battleship Prince of Wales were wiped out.

When the Repulse was attacked I made my way with scores of sailors from the flag deck to the ship's scuppers.

The ship listed at such an angle I was able to walk down to the sea, as though down a sloping sidewalk.

Every man and officer aboard both warships behaved as navy men do, heroically and calmly amid a frightful nightmare of rending explosions and wholesale deaths.

From a protruding anti-torpedo blister on the Repulse I leaped into the warm sea.

The physical hell created by the Japanese attack was matched by a psychological hell.

My mind was filled with tales I had read as a boy of man-eating sharks in the South China sea.

But as we floated and swam around, waiting for someone to pick us up, not a single man was attacked by a shark.

I nearly died in the acrid fuel oil which covered the sea. The fumes almost poisoned me.

It was a scene of horror I shall never forget. I was barely able to keep myself afloat. I could no longer see the others who had jumped in with me.

Numbness came over me. I would have perished had not a naval rescue ship sighted me. A petty officer jumped overboard and roped me aboard his boat. He was Eric Monaghan of Edinburgh, the British navy's youngest petty officer.

With other survivors I was brought to Singapore. As I write this, I am trying to recover from fatigue—overpowering weariness.

FORM CLASS

New Course To Be Offered In Senior High Trade School.

Inauguration of a trade extension class in machine shop drawing and blueprint reading will take place today at 6:30 p. m. at Mansfield Senior high school, V. H. Oberlander, chief of the vocational training courses at the school, said this morning.

Sponsored by the federal government in conjunction with national defense classes now being offered, the course will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6:30 p. m. to 9 p. m.

Mansfielders desiring to enroll in the course are urged to contact either Oberlander or R. O. McFarland at the high school tonight.

Besides the drawing and reading classes instruction will also be offered to a few persons interested in reading building plans and specification, Oberlander said.

2,000 Saved From Wales, Repulse

SINGAPORE — (AP) — More than 2,000 of some 3,000 men who made up the crews of the sunken battleship Prince of Wales and cruiser Repulse have been rescued from the China sea, British authorities announced today.

Several hundred aboard a destroyer were among the first to land at Singapore, naval bastion at the tip of the Malay peninsula, as survivors of the destructive Japanese attack yesterday.

Both the 32,000-ton Repulse and the 35,000-ton Prince of Wales were the victims of bomb hits, according to the Japanese

"Frankly, this new tax bill has me worried!"

H. J. Dotson, principal of John Simpson Junior high school, reported today that the 165 soldiers, a part of the convoy which went through Mansfield yesterday and today, who were billeted in the school gymnasium, were the most orderly crowd that has ever used the gym. Dotson said that he opened the school cafeteria for their use, and that when they left this morning at 7 a. m. the building looked as though it had never been used at all last night.

Despite repeated warnings that they won't be able to take office legally in January, 11 persons elected to village, township, and board of education offices in November have not filed their campaign expense blanks with the county board of elections. The number of delinquents is being reduced slowly, however, and the election board still hopes to have all of them off its records by the end of the month. The board believes that some of the men have failed to file the reports because they receive little or no pay and won't lose much if they can't collect their salary.

After brushing up on the fine points in personal appearance and increasing their skill in contract bridge and handicraft, the past few weeks, the Y. W. C. A. Business Girls' club members will dispense with this form of hobby program to devote full time to Christmas projects. Costume jewelry for dresses and leathercraft have been made under the instruction of Mrs. John Salyer while E. H. Lockwood has coached the group on bridge. Last night Mrs. Delta Buckley taught make-up.

Mansfield's "Smokes For Yanks" campaign is going ahead rapidly but one Mansfield woman today handled the delivery of her pack of cigarets directly. Seeing one of the soldiers in the convoy, which remained here last night, directing traffic at Park avenue and Walnut streets this morning, she purchased a pack of cigarets and walked to the middle of the intersection, delivering them personally. Other contributors continue to drop their contributions in collection boxes, located in different public places throughout the city.

7 CARS BURN

Fire Destroys Part of Train After It Jumps Track.

SANDUSKY — (INS) — Seven freight cars of the Nickel Plate railroad were destroyed by fire today which followed a wreck of 33 cars of a 100-car train at Avery, seven miles south of Sandusky.

W. W. Kerstetter, of Bellevue, the conductor, and C. W. Snyder, Conneaut, the engineer, would give no reason for the wreck. Officials said there was no reason to believe the tracks were sabotaged.

The freight jumped the track, tore up nearly one quarter of a mile of track. None of the train crew was injured.

1 HURT AS CAR SKIDS, HITS POLE

Three Others Shaken Up In Mishap East of Mansfield.

One person was injured and three were shaken up last night when an automobile driven by Richard M. Pollard, Perrysville, hit the curb, skidded across the road and hit a telephone pole, snapping it off and turning the car on its left side, last night four miles east of Mansfield on U. S. Route 30.

Jean Stumbaugh, Loudonville R. D. 2, was admitted to General hospital and treated for contusions and a possible fracture of the pelvis, according to hospital authorities.

Three other occupants of the car escaped unhurt, according to state highway patrolmen.

CHECK OF 51 CITIES SHOWS PRICES DOWN

National Check By Mothers' Clubs Discloses Bread Only Item Higher In City.

Rising during a four-week period, Mansfield food prices are still under average prices paid in 51 cities over the nation, a survey conducted by the Friendly House Mothers' club in conjunction with the National Federation of Settlements showed today.

Of the articles checked by mothers in all of the cities in the survey the only article for which Mansfielders paid more than shoppers in other cities was bread.

The average bread price for the 51 cities was 8.5 cents per loaf while Mansfielders paid between 10 and 11 cents for the same loaf.

Mansfielders paid approximately four and a half cents less per pound for round steak, five cents less per pound for butter, almost a cent less per quart for milk and six cents per dozen less for eggs.

What makes these figures even more striking, Mrs. Ruth Augustine, conductor of the Mansfield survey, said, was that the national figures with which the Mansfield figures were compared were for Sept. 15 while the Mansfield figures were for Dec. 5. Between Sept. 15 and Dec. 5, she said, national prices must have risen even further.

Reports forwarded from the New York headquarters to Mrs. Augustine showed that over the nation food prices rose 1.2 per cent between July 15 and Aug. 12 and that on Sept. 16 they were 14 per cent higher than a year ago at that date.

During the first four weeks of the Mansfield survey, which just closed, round steak rose approximately one cent a pound; bacon went up two and a half cents a pound; sugar, beans and milk remained at the same prices; coffee closed the four-week period on the same figure it started after rising and falling five cents during the period; eggs rose two cents and butter averaged a lower price than at the start of the survey.

Mrs. Augustine said the Mothers' club would continue the survey for two more months to determine the effect of the war on prices.

Although prices have been steadily rising until November, Frances Perkins, head of the U. S. department of labor, said Monday that her statistics showed they had a slight drop in November, the first in a year.

'Tin Can' Matinee For Yule Baskets On for Saturday

The Junior Association of Commerce is rapidly completing plans for the "tin can" matinee, Saturday morning at the Ritz theater. The show is expected to supply hundreds of cans of fruit, vegetables and other foodstuffs for the Give-a-Christmas baskets.

Doors of the theater will open at 9 a. m. and the picture bill starts at 9:30 a. m. The only admission is at least one can of food, and it must be packed in tin because glass containers are too destructible.

The matinee is open to both children and adults and the Junior Association of Commerce will be on hand to receive all donations which are definitely not limited one to a customer.

Services of the theater staff are being donated for this occasion which means dinner and cheer to the city's unfortunate families on the greatest of holidays.

One of three sponsors of the Give-a-Christmas program this year, the Junior Association of Commerce has appointed Charles Robertson as chairman on matinee arrangements. The News-Journal and Mansfield Community Fund are the other two sponsors working to provide at least 400 dinners to Mansfield's needy.

High Court Says Rural Electric Co-operatives Can Be Taxed.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Properties of rural electric co-operatives may be assessed for taxation on the same basis as other privately-owned electric utilities, the state supreme court has ruled.

The decision was returned in the appeal of the South Central Rural Electric co-operative, a non-profit corporation serving members only in Fairfield, Franklin, Licking, Muskingum, Pickaway, Ross and Perry counties, from the state tax department's valuation of $325,100.

Santa and the WHITE ROSE

by Sigrid Arne

The Story So Far: Carl, a peasant's son, has won an archery tournament in King Harald's court. The banquet, afterwards, was attended by a mysterious old man who slipped a present in King Harald's pocket.

Chapter Ten

KING HARALD GETS A MAGIC PIPE

THAT night, after the banquet, the King asked Carl to walk with him to his library. They sat down in big, red leather chairs and a man with a violin and two men with guitars followed them and played sweet songs.

As it grew late, King Harald said to Carl, "Tomorrow you will return home, but if your father can spare you from the farm I want you to come here and join the castle guard."

Carl was so surprised he caught his breath. Then he said, "I shall have to ask my parents, but I know of nothing I would rather do."

"Well, then," said the King, "please ride home tomorrow and come back to tell me the answer."

Carl promised. That night he was so excited he could hardly sleep. You see, he really didn't want to go back to the farm. You remember that Santa had brought him into being from half a white rose, and had, thereby, placed a spell of restlessness on him. Carl was feeling that spell already and his heart had been heavy when he thought of leaving the court and going back to the farm. It was heavy, too, when he thought of leaving home. But he had long since decided to do that. Now the King made it easy for him.

THE next morning he was up with the sun, and at sunset he was home and had told his story. His parents consented to his plan to live at the court and he prepared to join the King's guard.

But now I must tell you about King Harald and the present he had found in his pocket after the banquet. You remember that an old man has placed something there. That night when the King went to his room he found the gift. It was the magic pipe which Santa had made for him.

The King was so full of wonder about the pipe that he immediately lit it and had a smoke in the moonlight. "I wonder," he thought to himself, "this can't be an ordinary pipe. It came mysteriously and it came on a happy day."

He took it from his mouth, lit a candle, and examined the pipe closely. But he saw nothing unusual except the beautiful carved figures of the farmer, the miner and the sailor.

"I wish," he said to himself, "that this pipe had been an answer to some of the heavy cares of being a King." He sighed and as he did so the three little men on the bowl of the pipe stepped out onto his hand, just as they had stepped out onto Santa's hand.

"For goodness' sakes, it is a magic pipe."

"WHAT? For goodness' sakes," exclaimed the King, "it is a magic pipe." The three little men bowed to him, and then they stepped back onto the pipe bowl, and looked just like three little wooden men again.

The King was extremely pleased. He found a fine ivory box and put the pipe carefully away wrapped in a silk kerchief. He slept happily that night.

But deep down below the garden in the next kingdom there was trouble brewing both for King Harald and for Carl. You remember the three tiny witches who had exacted three promises from the Princess Hildur? These witches were growing restless. They had asked and received Hildur's promise of the first three wishes she made after she was 21. Now 16 years had passed. They had met in the middle room in the deep cave where they lived. They sat watching an hour-glass mark the passing hours. That night as they turned it over the oldest one cackled. "Only five years more and we shall leave this cave forever. Heh, heh, that foolish princess."

TOMORROW: A witch visits Hildur.

MAIL PRESENTS

NEW WASHINGTON—Twenty-one boys of this area who are in military service were sent Christmas boxes by members of the Carl A. Geiger post of the American Legion last week.

Commander George West has announced that the post has gone "over the top" in the membership drive. A series of card parties have been played by teams of the post with P. J. Koepfer and E. R. Shoup as captains and the last of the series will be played at the social meeting on Dec. 17. Refreshments will be served.

'MILLIONAIRE DAYS' ENDED FOR MARINES

Pay's Just Pay Now — In Shanghai It Was Worth $18 To One.

(By Wide World)

WASHINGTON—The "millionaires of the marine corps" are back where they started as poor boys.

They are the 970 officers and men whose pay dollar was worth $18 in Shanghai, Peiping and Tientsin but will amount to only 100 cents again in Manila. President Roosevelt ordered them to the Philippines in withdrawing the last remaining garrisons from China.

Tales of fabulous doings with Chinese exchange abound in the corps—buck privates turning their $20 a month into fortunes; leisure, fun and frolic where only the very rich dared draw a billfold; marines in financial or business enterprises of their own, ex-marines married and living in China on their savings!

Fantastic! Well, in China a $1 American greenback was worth 18 Mexican dollars in local currency, but the Mex dollar would buy as much goods and services as the American dollar. Millionaires, for sure, say the leathernecks.

It's all over now. United States marines have guarded American interests in China for 97 years. This is the first time they ever have been removed lock, stock and barrel. Too dangerous to stay, said officials—the token force could be massacred in event of war with Japan.

But the "Maligns" as Asiatics call them, faced fearful odds for nearly a century—during which they crossed steel with fanatical Chinese hordes and rammed battle banners into the muzzles of Korean cannon. They had their toughest going in the Boxer rebellion of 1900 and the civil war of 1927.

There have been any number of marine landing or boarding parties in the far east. These were chiefly small excursions to quell riots, chase bandits, save missionaries or protect property.

In all their China excursions the leathernecks were the first to land, the last to leave. They always grabbed off the spectacular spots—that was their job. But behind them came the United States sailors and soldiers with the heavy stuff that stayed put.

Marines first landed in China on business in 1844. The East India squadron had been nosing around coastal waters there since 1825 on rumors that the Chinese didn't think so much of Yankee traders. Finally, a Canton merchant was killed in a riot and Chinese mobs stormed an American factory to avenge him.

Captain Tilton took a small detachment from the U. S. S. St. Louis ashore on Whampoa beach armed with muskets and cutlasses to guard the American compound until Caleb Cushing, First U. S. Minister to China, adjusted difficulties with local officials.

Commodore Matthew C. Perry gave the Orient its most colorful and historically perhaps its most important acquaintance with American marines. He steamed into Yedo (Tokyo) bay in 1853 under presidential orders to negotiate a treat with Japan, which for nearly 200 years had shunned western commerce.

Natives, awed by ships that belched smoke and moved against wind and tide, yelled out in fright and 5,000 warriors took battle stance to stave off the sea devils. Perry trained his guns on the landing and sent Major Zellin's 100 gorgeous marines ashore to drill and strut.

The stunt worked. Never were leathernecks so garbed in white and scarlet and gold and plumes and tassels. Perry's official party followed with great pomp and splendor. The marines formed two gleaming ranks of steel on either side of the landing and escorted the commodore to representatives of the Mikado. Soon after there was a revolution in the islands and Japan went in for modernization and western civilization.

Brig. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, dispatched in 1927 to protect Americans in the civil war between factions of Gen Wu Pei-Fu and Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, led the largest marine force ever assembled in China, 6,000 officers and men

Only 1,200 men of the fourth remained in China, chiefly at Shanghai, when the Japanese attacked the native Chapei district in 1932, but reinforcements from the sixth brought marine numbers up to 2,500 by 1935. The sixth gradually dwindled to 970 officers left again in 1938 and the fourth and men by the time President Roosevelt decided to close out the career of "the richest leathernecks afloat."

Rear Admiral Isaac Campbell Kidd, 57 (above) commander of a battleship division of the U. S. KNOCKED OUT

LOVELAND, Colo.—(U.P.)—When Ted Pfaltzgraff, 40, was struck by lightning the bolt stripped all his clothes off—but he lived to tell about it.

Standing near an irrigation ditch, Pfaltzgraff was holding a shovel. The bolt knocked him unconscious and he fell upon the shovel. His chin struck over the shovel handle which held his body partly erect and thereby probably saved him from drowning in the water. Several minutes later he regained consciousness.

SPEEDS ENGINEERING

SYDNEY, Australia —(U.P.) The war, according to the minister for external affairs, has increased Australia's engineering technique and equipment 20 years ahead of the country's normal needs and development. He expressed the hope the present gun factories can be adapted to the manufacture of washing machines and other peace-time implements.

Uses a Team of Moose to Pull His Buggy Around

CHELMSFORD, Ont. —(INS)— There was a time when farmers pulled their teams up when an automobile passed, held them in check as they reared at the strange contraption and hoped for the best. Many tourists who are traveling the interesting road between Chelmsford, Ontario and Sudbury, famous nickel mining country, are reversing this procedure by pulling their cars to a halt at the side of the road, rubbing their eyes and then wondering whether they see right. The reason is Albert Vallancourt and his strange team of two moose hitched to a buggy.

It all started late last fall when Albert Vallancourt, French-Canadian northwoodsman and a companion, combing the woods for wolves, heard the bleat of a young moose in distress. Following the cry, they found a bear attacking the infant animal and one well-aimed shot by Vallancourt put the bear where all good bears eventually go . . . on the floor of the hunter's lodge.

Vallancourt took the baby moose home with him. Several months late a French boy came to call and offered a playmate for Vallancourt's moose. Thus began one of the strangest teams to pull a cart. While Vallancourt does not use them for farming, he finds that they offer a fast and exciting way of getting him places.

CHEF DEAD

PLATTSBURG, N. Y.—(U.P.)—The chef at New York state's "Little Siberia" is dead. Twenty-seven years ago, Gustave A. Arnold was appointed chief at Clinton prison. The German born immigrant had been responsible for the appetites of more than 2,200 inmates for over a quarter of a century.

Guarding Plant

One of the more than 200 guards who are protecting the huge General Electric plant at Schenectady, N. Y., is seen keeping watch from an elevated tower within the factory grounds. Atop each watch tower is a huge searchlight. Thirty thousand workers labor here night and day, seven days a week, in defense production.

SUBDUES TRICKY PISTOL

LANDUSKY, Mont. —(U.P.)—For a few brief moments here, the city enjoyed all the thrills of the "Old West." An Indian attempted to settle an argument with a Luger type pistol. Residents scurried to cover behind doors. corners and automobiles. Bullets ripped through the streets, as the Indian emptied the pistol. No one was hurt and no one was arrested.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

"If they drop the army draft age to 18, we might just as well forget right now all about an Ohio State baseball league next season."

That was George Satterlee, president of the Mansfield Braves, speaking.

He had just read a story from Tiffin that officials of the Mud Hens were prepared to quit league play now that the war with Japan has started.

"We already have two young pitchers and a first baseman lined up for next season," Satterlee disclosed, "and all three of them are over six feet tall, under the present draft age, and promising.

"We could get together a pretty fair sort of a ball club in this "D" class league with players between 18 and 21, but we couldn't begin to play with the draft at 18.

"It's a cinch that any young fellow who's able to play ball is physically fit for the army now that we're at war, although some were turned down last summer for old football knees and other injuries that failed to effect their playing," was Satterlee's conclusion.

Plans for the Braves continuing in baseball next summer are just as uncertain now as they ever were. They depend, according to Satterlee, on what the Cleveland Indians want to do about baseball in Mansfield.

If the Ohio State league should decide to operate, and if the Cleveland club wants to help provide a ball park and players, the Braves probably will be in the field again in 1942. That's been the score ever since the 1941 season closed, and it hasn't changed.

Regarding the Tiffin story that the Mud Hens were ready to give up for next season, Satterlee declared:

"Yes, and I think the rest of the clubs in the Ohio State league are ready to give up too. None of them made any money during the peace time of 1941. I don't see how they can expect to make any money with a war going on.

* * *

"As a matter of fact," declared Satterlee, "I don't think any minor league ball club is planning very seriously right now on the 1942 season. They want to find out what the situation's going to be."

Bucks Nip Navy Club Cage Bid

Graf Holds Former All-American To 3 Goals.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio State's Buckeye basketeers came through their initial encounter of the season with flying colors.

Sparkling especially on defense, the Bucks upset the flashy Great Lakes Naval training station quintet, 38-32, by rallying in the second period to break a 14-14 halftime tie.

Capt. Jack Graf, Ohio State guard, was the defensive star of the contest. Assigned to watch Frankie Baumholtz, former all-American from Ohio university, Graf held the high-scoring ace to three field goals.

* * *

Dick Fisher, Ohio State forward and one of the leading scorers of the Big Ten last season, contributed 11 points to the Buckeye effort. He was the game's high scorer.

Ohio State found two valuable sophomores in Forward Bud Wise and Center Jack Wilce. Both sank field goals at crucial moments in the first half to keep Ohio in the running.

The first Western conference basketball team to lose a game this season is Chicago, which last night became Loyola's third victim of the campaign, 48 to 31. Chicago previously had beaten Illinois Tech. Indiana won its opener, a 36-27 decision over Wabash.

Leo Mogus, high-scoring guard of Youngstown college, took the Ohio collegiate basketball spotlight last night with a 34-point individual effort as the Penguins downed Hiram college 69-27.

* * *

Mogus, a junior, sank 15 field goals and four free throws to continue a brilliant scoring record begun last season when he had a total of 348 points.

Youngstown led 24 to 12 at the half.

Cincinnati university trimmed Morehead Teachers college of Kentucky, 47-38, in a rough game at Cincinnati. Three Morehead players were lost on personal fouls, but Earl Duncan, Morehead forward, came out with 12 points and high scoring honors.

* * *

Wilmington college surprised a favored Otterbein team by getting off to an early lead and winding up with a 64-49 upset victory. Capt. Denver Stacey, Wilmington guard, scored 20 points, all on field goals.

Today's schedule: Kent State at Findlay (Ohio conference), Kenyon at Denison (Ohio conference), Cedarville at Earlham, Fairmont at Marietta.

ENTRIES RECEIVED IN EAGLE TOURNEY

First Mansfield entries in the five-man bowling tournament to be sponsored by Mansfield Eagles at Colony alleys Dec. 20-21 were received last night by Jim Orr, tourney manager.

They include Art Rattan, Goebel Beers, Bissman Birdie Brands, Chet's Novelties, Schlitz Beers, and of course, the Eagles.

Word from Marion said 12 teams are already signed up there for the tournament.

Birdie Brands Batter Maples

Hang Up 3219 Total; Meder Leads With 702.

Bissman Birdie Brands treated themselves to one of their best nights last evening in City "A" league competition at Colony alleys, and posted a total of 3219 pins.

Sonny Meder led in the maple massacre with a brilliant 702 on games of 279-209-214. Added to this ssensational series was a 693 by Winnie Cleckner on games of 223-244-226, a 623 by Johnny Leppo on 183-217-223, and a 603 by Farrell Hipp on 209-211-183. Only Art Hilborn failed to reach the charmed 600 circle, and he missed it by only two pins.

Other 600 scores rolled in the league last night were: Carl Phillipon, 628; Jones, 607; Garrison, 600; Henry Heiser, 630; Johnny Perrine, 618.

Meder's 279 was high game for the evening, but Heiser was only two pins off the pace at 277.

LOUIS PICKED AS BEST FIGHTER OF THE YEAR

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Joe Louis, heavyweight champion, has been unanimously named "the fighter of the year" by the New York Boxing Writers' association and will be given the Edward J. Neil memorial award Jan. 14, five days after he defends his title against Buddy Baer.

Previous winners were Jack Dempsey, 1938; Billy Conn, 1939; and Henry Armstrong, 1940.

Newark Starts Veteran Club

Elyria Visits Mansfield For Saturday Contest.

Newark high Wildcats, boasting one of the best schoolboy basketball machines in the state, will start an almost entirely senior quartet against Mansfield tomorrow night when the Tygers invade the Licking county seat.

Probable lineup for the 'Cats will be Dwight (Dee) Snelling and Carl Seesholtz, forwards, Bill Gorsuch, center, Jim Cooper and Elmer Munkachy, guards. 'All are seniors except Gorsuch, a sophomore.

Gorsuch, Snelling and Seesholtz are six-footers. In Newark's opening victory last week, 47-32, over Columbus East, Snelling, who has been the Wildcats' leading scorer for two seasons, started out at his usual pace, leading the bucket brigade with 14 points.

Al all-Ohio forward, Snelling holds the state tournament single game scoring record with 27 points against Youngstown Rayen last spring.

Bob Lawrence, six-foot, seven-inch senior center, and Kenton Campbell, six-foot, three-inch sophomore guard, probably will break into the lineup.

Coach Vern Hoffman of the Tygers continues to shift his lineup around in an effort to produce a scoring punch, a commodity the Tygers have possessed only in streaks in their first two defeats at the hands of Columbus South and Findlay.

The new combination of Dietzel at center, Bob Winbigler and Dean Hahn at forwards, and Jack Shiplet and Ken Krupp at guards may or may not be tuned up for the Newark game, but Hoffman at least hopes to have it going by the time the Tygers meet Elyria here Saturday night.

Elyria last week defeated Findlay 29 to 24 the night before the Tygers bowed to Findlay. The two games were practically duplicates. Both Mansfield and Elyria gained a long first half lead on Findlay, and then were unable to hit the bucket in the second half. The difference was that Elyria's first half lead held up against the second half drive of Findlay while Mansfield's didn't.

Friendly House Cage Play Started

The All-Stars and the Goons won their first round cage games in the Friendly House Intermediate White league last night by trouncing the Red Birds and the Tigers on the settlement floor.

High scorer for the All-Stars over the Red Birds was Flock with four field goals for eight points. Henry of the Tigers led the scoring with seven points although his team lost to the Goons.

Conn-Louis Fight Called Best Sport Story Of Year

NEW YORK—(INS)—Referee Eddie Joseph tolled ten over the unconscious and supine form of Billy Conn, then held aloft the soggy-gloved hand of Joe Louis.

More than 75,000 persons were thrilled and thrown into a vocal frenzy by Conn's gallant and nearly successful battle for the heavyweight championship. In that 13th round, however, the quick-tempered Conn fell victim to a flury of Louis' uppercuts and tumbled like a pole-axed ox upon the canvas in the Polo Grounds prize ring.

Those spectators, their emotions taut as violin strings, had witnessed the drama that International News Service writers today selected as the foremost sports story of 1941.

The sports writers concluded that the Louis-Conn duel possessed that "extra something," that made it a little more readable, a trifle more appealing than scores of other events which rode beneath banner headlines.

There was an abundance of noteworthy news, however. This was shown in the concensus of opinion and votes, wherein the International News Service sports writers ranked the top ten stories, in order of their importance and appeal, as follows:

* * *

1—The Conn-Louis fight.

2—Mickey Owen's World Series error.

3—Brooklyn's drive to a National League pennant.

4—Lou Gehrig's death.

5—Establishment of a consecutive game hitting record by Joe DiMaggio.

6—Craig Wood's upset triumph in the L. S. Open.

7—Whirlaway's turf campaign.

8—Buddy Baer's punch sending Louis through the ropes.

9—Ted Williams batting performance.

10—Lou Boudreau, at 24, youngest manager in baseball history.

Selections ran almost even-Stephen on the four top items, each of which possess every element of fiction. There was the dramatic, the romantic, the humorous, the tragic in all of them.

Reverting to the basic theory that man against man is of elemental interest to everybody, the sports scriveners generally thought that Billy Conn's bid for the ring's most valued prize against Louis, the allegedly invincible, had most of everything.

It was a lasting impression made by the 21-year-old Pittsburgh kid, a 3-1 underdog, a mere 170 pounds of ambitious youth against the hulking power of the Brown Bomber. Conn, moreover, was a lad in love.

This invasion of the sports realm by sweet affection further improved the story. On the eve of Conn's Big Opportunity against Louis, his prospective father-in-law threatened dire happenings if Sweet William should marry Miss Mary Louise Smith.

None forgot how Conn fought—at first conservatively, then with the wizardy of a master, and finally with a diabolic glint of savagery.

They remembered, also, how he belted and rocked Louis in the twelfth round, and how, in the next heat, Conn trumped his ace. Far ahead with the title virtually within his grasp, he elected to slug with Joe, toe-to-toe. The lights went out for William.

His little Irish mother, lying on her death bed back home in Pittsburgh, told the boy she was proud of him. And not long later, she died.

There was a romantic ending to the Conn story, though, because the handsome lad who could have escorted nearly any girl he desired, married his childhood sweetheart, her father was appeased and everybody was happy.

Cross Sets Pace In Westie-A Loop

C. Cross rolled high score of 578 in the Westinghouse "A" league last night at Colony alleys, on games of 158-208-212, just two pins over Ridenour who had 205-211-160—576.

S. Them turned in high game of 219.

Baseball Set To Talk War

CHICAGO—(AP)—Baseball had its ear tuned for today's joint meeting of the major leagues as the possible sounding board for a statement of the sport's war aims.

The National and American leagues have been in separate and secret sessions for two days and much of the discussion of the owners has been concerning problems created by the war.

Up till now Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis has remained virtually silent about baseball's place in the national effort but it was believed the joint meeting would produce some expression from organized baseball as to its plans.

* * *

Trading calmed down overnight—the only new deal being the Cleveland Indians' purchase of Pitcher Vernon Kennedy from the Washington Senators for about the waiver price of $7,500. The one-time Detroit start won only three games and lost 11 last season while splitting his services between St. Louis and Washington.

* * *

The absence of trades helped turn the full spotlight on the business sessions of the leagues, the owners wrangled all day long about the amendment to the major-minor rules, which, the minors adopted unanimously in an attempt to loosen the restrictions on the movement of players within farm systems.

A joint steering committee appointed from the two leagues was unable to agree on the amendment.

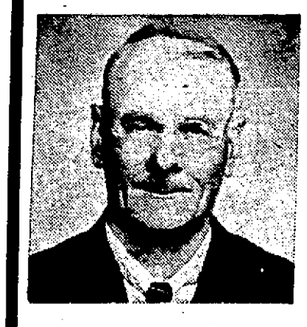
PIQUA MAN COULD SOON NOTICE A BIG DIFFERENCE IN THE WAY HE FELT

Claims his sleep was broken several times each night by disturbing night risings. Suffered pains and cramps in legs and hips. Bee Bee's gave him splendid results.

"I was always well until the last months, I suffered from a serious kidney trouble which caused unlimited sufferings," says Mr. Grant Blossom, R. R. No. 7, Hamilton, O.



MR. GRANT BLOSSOM

"My sleep and rest was broken several times each night by too frequent, kidney actions. The urine passages were accompanied by a torturing burning and smarting sensation which made it still more burdensome. My back, arms, wrists, legs and hips were full of sharp pains. My muscles and joints were so stiff and sore. Dizziness and spots before my eyes were common and aggravating.

"After taking Bee Bee's for only a few days I could notice a big difference in the way I felt. Those terrible cramps and backaches are only a memory now and nightly risings have been reduced. Before I used Bee Bee's my wrists were so stiff and swollen if I turned my hand or lifted something my wrists were full of pain.

"I am recommending Bee Bee's to everyone who suffers with kidney troubles. Try it, and see for yourself."

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

The program also included the judging of year books made by members of the club with awards being made to Miss Martha Bockley, first; Mrs E E. Felger, second, and Mrs. Myers, third. The books were judged by Mrs Fred Wolf Mrs. P. C. Schiller and Mrs. Cloyd Hines of Mansfield.

FETE RETIRING ASHLAND PASTOR

ASHLAND — Dr. Merton S. Rick, pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist church of Detroit, will be the speaker at a dinner of the Ashland Ministerial association Friday evening honoring Dr. Arthur H. Smith, former pastor of the Lutheran church here who retired Aug 31 after a 46-year pastorate of the church. Dr. Smith's retirement also closed 50 years of service in the ministry.

The dinner will be held at the Methodist Educational building and representatives from all churches and Christian institutions of the city have been invited. Dr. H. E. Andrews, pastor of the Presbyterian church, will be toastmaster. Dr. A. A. Hunter, pastor of the Methodist church, is president of the Ministerial association.

RITES TODAY

GALION — Funeral services will be held Thursday morning in Bellefontaine for Mrs. L. E. Christian, 63, a sister of Mrs T. E. Lutz of Galion. Mrs. Christian died Monday. Her husband, former chief of police of Galion and later Big Four chief of police at Bellefontaine, died earlier this year. Burial will be made in Versailles.

Surviving besides Mrs Lutz of Galion is another sister and two brothers.

FIVE YEARS IN CAST

U. S. SPEEDS UP CENSOR CONTROL OF PRESS, RADIO

Extension, Co-ordination of Censorship Expected Within Few Days.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — War-time censorship machinery accelerated its pace today as government agencies invoked certain press restrictions and imposed controls over short-wave radio, wireless telegraph and cable communications.

Officials said the machinery would be extended within the next few days and that steps would be taken to co-ordinate censorship activities of the various agencies. So far, varying degrees of censorship are being exercised by the army, navy and the office of co-ordinator of information, the agency headed by Col. William J. (Wild Bill) Donovan.

Within the next few days, a high government official said, censorship will be applied to domestic radio broadcasters by an organization that will be headed by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover. It was understood that Hoover will serve until a civilian can be appointed to that post.

Chairman James L. Fly of the Federal Communications Commission said the FCC has not been called upon to initiate any censorship over domestic broadcasting. He added, however, that military agencies, in co-operation with the FCC, were studying extension of restrictions on rebroadcasts of radiocasts originating from points outside the United States.

There also were suggestions in official quarters that censorship of the mails and domestic telegrams will go into effect shortly. It was possible that such a censorship was now operating informally, officials said.

The navy invoked provisions of the 1918 espionage act governing conveyance or publication of any information that might be of value to the enemy. Announcement of this action was made by Rear Admiral A. J. Hepburn, chief of the navy's bureau of public relations, who did not give specific examples of the kind of information barred from publication. Hepburn said the army had taken similar action.

The maritime commission "requested" all agencies of public information to refrain from publication or announcement of information direct and indirect, concerning the movement, position, cargoes or destination of any merchant vessels in any waters.

SMART ANIMAL

NORWALK—(U.P.)—Take it from a Huron county, farmer, the hog is the "smartest" farm animal.

Glenn Wood, farmer and former county commissioner, says he has proved it. A hog, Wood says, needs only one shock from an electrically charged stock fence to convince him that it is well to stay clear.

On the other hand, Wood says, horses, cows and sheep have to be shocked several times before they learn the lesson.

COURSES ON GAS

CHICAGO—(INS)—A course to prepare doctors and chemists to fight the dangers of poison and poison gas in time of war will be offered by the University of Chicago in its summer session. Dr. Eugene Ceiling, in charge of the new course entitled "Toxicology and National Defense," stated that it will be open to medical and chemical students as part of the university's contribution to the preparedness program.

Excitement Hits Monkey Colony At 'Frisco Zoo

SAN FRANCISCO—(INS)—The Battle of Monkey Island was called off recently and citizens returned to their normal jabbering and caper-cutting.

Strife in the monkey colony at San Francisco's Zoological Gardens came without warning. Eight new monkeys, smug with having graduated from the experimental laboratories of the Hooper Foundation, had been sent to the island.

Upon arrival, invaders were thrown into the water, chased up trees and from rock to rock. It was a free-for-all with no holds barred until Carey Baldwin, zoo director, and his assistants rounded up the invasion-resisters and tossed them into concentration camps.

Later new arivals were released in groups of three or four. Nothing violent happened.

"I think all they wanted to do was to make it clear who was running the island," Mr. Baldwin said.

INJURED IN FALL

BUCYRUS—Mrs. Izora Dwire, 88, Sycamore, was admitted to City hospital Monday for treatment for a fractured hip suffered in a fall at her home.

STAGE MINSTREL

NASHVILLE—There will be a minstrel sponsored by the Nashville high school Dec. 15, in the Nashville high school auditorium at 8 p. m.

Dear Friends,

The pictures above are of our trained service staff. They have all been with us for a long time, and have shown us and our customers by their unceasing effort to do better work that they are here to stay.

Although the major part of our service is on Pontiac cars, we are fully equipped to handle all makes of cars. Leave your car with us when you have some work to be done. We are sure you will be pleased because we endeavor to give the same efficient service on every type of job, from a complete rebuilding of a wrecked auto to a simple lubrication. We invite you, the car owners of Mansfield, to drop in and inspect our shop at any time. We'll be expecting you.

Sincerely Yours,
C. J. "Bill" Solomon.

WEST PRESSES WAR ON RATS TO NIP PLAGUE

Bubonic Scourge Detected In Colorado Squirrels and Woodchucks.

(By United Press)

DENVER—A battle line has been drawn along the Continental Divide from Mexico to Canada in an effort to keep Bubonic Plague from reaching the Mississippi Valley and crowded eastern cities.

"Once the plague gets among eastern rats, an epidemic is likely," Dr. R. L. Cleere, Secretary of the Colorado Board of Health, said.

"The rats are where we can draw the barrier."

Discovery of eight cases of plague—the scourge of the Dark Ages—in Colorado squirrels and woodchucks led Dr. Cleere to declare "the nation is ripe for an epidemic."

"We have the infection," he explained. "Once the infection reaches domesticated rats, it'll be only another step to human beings.

"About 75 per cent of Bubonic cases among human beings are fatal," he said, adding that state and federal officials ordered the rat extermination campaign.

Transmitted from rats to persons by fleas, the disease gets into the bloodstream and affects the glands. Then it usually develops into pneumatic plague, a lung disease even more contagious and fatal than Bubonic.

The disease has not been found among rodents east of Colorado and North Dakota.

"There is nothing to get panicky about as long as we keep it from the rats," Dr. Cleere said. "And we're trying to do that by getting rid of the rats.

"The first step in the rat extermination drive will be to improve city and town garbage collection and disposal systed and elimination, of dumps," he said.

City and county health authorities were asked to join the rat campaign. "We'll have to start at the ground and work up," Dr. Cleere instructed them.

"To prevent the spread of the plague from wild rodents to urban rats 'rodent free zones' are recommended around cities and towns," he said.

Medical representatives, meeting in Salt Lake City, from 13 western states infested by plague-infected wild rodents declared:

"Military concentrations and maneuvers in any of these states constitute a real hazard to the soldier unless extensive control is carried out. This applies particularly to the Boise, Ida., and Hunter Liggett areas."

Bubonic plague is commonly thought of as an Asiatic disease although 30 human cases have been known along the Pacific Coast in the last eight years. The last epidemic occurred in San Francisco in 1902.

"The mortality rate is particularly high because we have no vaccine for treatment," Dr. Cleere said.

The squirrel and woodchuck cases in Colorado, near Montrose and Placerville on the western slope, were discovered by units of the U. S. Public Health Service.

WEST PRESSES WAR ON RATS TO NIP PLAGUE

Bubonic Scourge Detected In Colorado Squirrels and Woodchucks.

(By United Press)

DENVER—A battle line has been drawn along the Continental Divide from Mexico to Canada in an effort to keep Bubonic Plague from reaching the Mississippi Valley and crowded eastern cities.

"Once the plague gets among eastern rats, an epidemic is likely," Dr. R. L. Cleere, Secretary of the Colorado Board of Health, said.

"The rats are where we can draw the barrier."

Discovery of eight cases of plague—the scourge of the Dark Ages—in Colorado squirrels and woodchucks led Dr. Cleere to declare "the nation is ripe for an epidemic."

"We have the infection," he explained. "Once the infection reaches domesticated rats, it'll be only another step to human beings.

"About 75 per cent of Bubonic cases among human beings are fatal," he said, adding that state and federal officials ordered the rat extermination campaign.

Transmitted from rats to persons by fleas, the disease gets into the bloodstream and affects the glands. Then it usually develops into pneumatic plague, a lung disease even more contagious and fatal than Bubonic.

The disease has not been found among rodents east of Colorado and North Dakota.

"There is nothing to get panicky about as long as we keep it from the rats," Dr. Cleere said. "And we're trying to do that by getting rid of the rats.

"The first step in the rat extermination drive will be to improve city and town garbage collection and disposal systed and elimination of dumps," he said.

City and county health authorities were asked to join the rat campaign. "We'll have to start at the ground and work up," Dr. Cleere instructed them.

"To prevent the spread of the plague from wild rodents to urban rats 'rodent free zones' are recommended around cities and towns," he said.

Medical representatives, meeting in Salt Lake City, from 13 western states infested by plague-infected wild rodents declared:

"Military concentrations and maneuvers in any of these states constitute a real hazard to the soldier unless extensive control is carried out. This applies particularly to the Boise, Ida., and Hunter Liggett areas."

Bubonic plague is commonly thought of as an Asiatic disease although 30 human cases have been known along the Pacific Coast in the last eight years. The last epidemic occurred in San Francisco in 1902.

"The mortality rate is particularly high because we have no vaccine for treatment," Dr. Cleere said.

The squirrel and woodchuck cases in Colorado, near Montrose and Placerville on the western slope, were discovered by units of the U. S. Public Health Service.

NEED $100? HERE'S WHAT TO DO

Tell us how much you need, $20 to $500; how much you can repay monthly; and answer a few simple questions.

Loans made three ways (1) on signature (2) on car (3) on furniture. No endorsers. Friends or relatives are not told. Fair treatment in case of sickness or unemployment. Payments include charges of 2% monthly on balances of $300 or less and ½% monthly on any remainder—the same rate to everyone. Nothing else to pay. To apply—phone, write or visit office. Money ready next day—or sooner if necessary.

MARKET FAILS TO BE AMAZED AT AXIS ACTION

Financial Circles Take War Declaration In Stride; Stocks Show Gain.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Declarations of war against the United States by Germany and Italy were taken in stride by today's financial markets.

Steels led a selective recovery shift at the opening and, near the second hour, gains of fractions to 2 points or so predominated. Dealings were fairly active from the start.

The war action of the Axis powers, brokers said, was in line with expectations and had scant effect on trends. News from the Pacific was a bit better and sentiment was propped by the reported strong defense put up by the Philippines to the Japanese invasion. Yesterday's late market comeback brought in some bidding on the theory the list may have touched bottom for the time being.

CHIEF TELLS OF 'SECRET' PLANS

Bates Announces Program For City Defense About Which Mayor Refused To Talk.

Police Chief Bates said that he suggested that council hire guards to patrol the citys water-pumping station at Maxwell Springs and the Woodland reservoir. He also urged that fencing be placed around both places and that spotlights be installed there.

Yesterday, when reminded that several residents must use the road passing the Maxwell pumping station to get to their homes, Bates suggested that some kind of an identification system be set up to check them.

Even though some of the councilmen have balked at the transfer of the police radio station from the basement to the third floor of the municipal building, according to Bates, the chief said it is necessary to insure the maintenance of the police communication system.

It was learned some council members objected because they said this would entail the employment of more police to man the regular police office downstairs. At present, the radio dispatcher also handles routine police reports.

In addition to the guarding of these vital points, Bates wants council to place wire screens across the windows of the police station and the pumping station.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, chairman of the local civilian defense committee, announced today that his committee would meet tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. at the American Legion Home to complete arrangements for the registration of volunteer defense workers.

Kalbfleisch said that he had prepared a questionnaire and that the committee would be asked to approve it and to set up registration headquarters.

Enlistees will be trained as auxiliary firemen or police wardens to do patrol work on call and to prevent looting. They will be given a special training course.

Kalbfleisch is also following the state council's advice in using Red Cross-trained first aid workers to set up a training program to help with nursing, public health hygiene and school health work.

PLAN MEETING

SHELBY—Registration of Civilian defense workers is well underway here. Preparations for civilian defense will be completed when the Shelby Defense council holds a meeting Dec. 16 at the city council chambers.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Give Tests Tonight. — Scoutmaster Glenn Pore announced today that swimming tests for all Boy Scouts in this area would be given at 7:30 p. m. today in the Senior high school pool for First Class, merit badge, and life-saving work.

Stage Bazaar Supper — The Ladies Aid society of the Church of the Brethren, Lincoln Heights, will hold a bazaar and chicken supper Friday at the church beginning at 5 p. m., it was announced today. Proceeds will be used for church purposes.

Learn of Death—Friends here learned today of the death in Cleveland of Charles F. Goodwin, the husband of the former Anna Hancock of Mansfield. A resident of East Liverpool, he died while attending a convention in Cleveland. Services will be held Saturday in East Liverpool.

Reports Coupling Theft — R. E. Lewis, 507 Wood street, district representative of the Pure Oil company, told police last night that a $25 brass tank car coupling had been stolen from the company's yards at 555 Newman street.

Shoot Scheduled — The Mansfield Muzzle-Loader Rifle club will hold a shoot at 1 p. m. Saturday at its grounds on U. S. Route 30-S, three miles west of Mansfield, A. T. Owen, secretary, announced today.

Check Chimney Fire — Mansfield firemen were called out this morning when a chimney on the DeYarmon apartments, 114 West Fourth street, became overheated. Firemen reported that the excessive heat caused roof timbers to smoulder but that little damage was caused.

Copper Wire Stolen — The Dominion Electric company reported to police today that 1,000 pounds of copper wire valued at approximately $200 had been stolen from their plant on Elm street. Police said that company officials could find no evidence that the thieves had broken into the plant.

Reports Attempted Attack—An Elyria girl, hitch-hiking from Mansfield, told police last night that a truck driver who picked her up on U. S. Route 42, north of the city, attempted to attack her on a sideroad between Mansfield and Ashland. She said he desisted after she screamed and brought her back to the main highway and left her.

Bandsmen Party — Band members and their guests at John Simpson Junior high school will be feted at a party at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow, consisting of a covered-dish dinner and dancing to the music of Tony Vincent's orchestra, sponsored by band leader, J. M. Holcombe, it was announced today.

Workman Injured — Russell Schaff, 191 North Benton street, was treated at General hospital early this morning for lacerations of the left elbow and forearm suffered when he fell backwards into a load of steel at the Tappan Stove company, while at work yesterday.

SHOWING GAIN

Conditions of Victims of Accidents Favorable.

The condition of two Mansfield residents injured yesterday noon in an automobile crash at Marion avenue and Woodhill road was reported favorable today at General hospital.

The injured were Mrs. H. E. Rupp, Mansfield R. D. 6, wife of the vice president of the Gorman-Rupp company, and George H. Maxwell, 116 Dawson avenue. Mrs. Rupp suffered fractures of two ribs, lacerations over her left eye, and injuries to her left knee. Maxwell's jaw was fractured and his face was cut.

Two persons escaped injury late yesterday when a Mansfield Bakery truck operated by Christ C. Chokreff, 220 North Main street, and a car driven by Richard Harold Shaffer, Lexington, R. D. 1, collided at the intersection of U. S. Route 42 and the Middle Bellville road south of Mansfield.

Deputy sheriffs said the drivers blamed ice on the roads for the collision.

Every American Can and Should Serve His Country
In The Patriotic Duty of Buying
UNITED STATES DEFENSE BONDS
Now, every American has a patriotic duty to his country, and a wise investment opportunity for himself, in the purchase of U. S. Defense Bonds. These sound Government Bonds are available in various denominations, so that everyone may help in this vital National program. We are qualified to assist both you and our Government, in the sale of these good investments, and are glad to act as agents, without profit to ourselves.
